

An Invitation

“Drugs Don’t Work” is a special program sponsored by your State and local Chambers of Commerce to provide assistance in implementing and maintaining a drug-free workplace program within your company.

Statistics indicate that benefits are realized through improved job performance; increased productivity; reduced absenteeism; less accidents, both on and off the job; decreased medical and workers’ compensation claims; and fewer losses from employee theft can far outweigh the cost of a drug-free workplace program. By joining “Drugs Don’t Work,” you can improve your company’s bottom line and make a tremendous contribution to the betterment of our community as a whole.

Drugs Don’t Work may be the “last, best hope” in the “War on Drugs.” Through education, forensic testing and employee rehabilitation, this program seeks to assure the employee and employer that their workplace is both safe and productive. The 7.5% savings on workers’ compensation premiums makes the program self-sufficient. Therefore, from a bottom-line perspective, Drugs Don’t Work initiatives make good business sense.

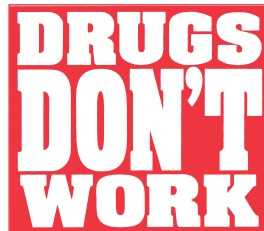

Drugs Don’t Work (DDW) is made possible through an alliance among the following organizations:

The Cost of Substance Abuse in the Workplace

Workers' Compensation: 38 to 50 percent of all workers' compensation claims are related to substance abuse in the workplace. Substance abusers file three to five times more claims than the general population.

Health Care: Drug users have 300 percent higher utilization of health care insurance and benefits.

Property Loss: Employees who use drugs are more likely to damage company property due to impairment and may take company property to subsidize their substance abuse.

Lost Productivity: Drug use in the workplace results in lower output, poor customer service and decreased morale of co-workers.

Before you decide drugs are not a threat to your business, consider this...

- 74 percent of drug users are employed.
- More than 50 million drug users work in small businesses.

"Too few employers are aware of the true extent of the consequences of alcoholism and drug addictions. If they were, you would see a lot more support of drug-free workplace programs."

A Simple and Cost-Efficient Approach

The Augusta Metro Chamber of Commerce has designed a simple and cost-efficient program to help your company implement and maintain a certified drug-free workplace.

Certification Requirements	Drugs Don't Work Services
Written Policy	Technical Assistance with policy writing and other compliance issues
Supervisor Training and Employee Education	On-site supervisor training and employee education
Employee Drug Testing	Discounted drug testing negotiated at rates not available to companies on individual basis
Company maintained list of employee assistance providers or a comprehensive Employee Assistance Program (EAP)	Discounted comprehensive EAP services which company may offer as benefit to employees; various other means of employee assistance provided as a resource.

Certified drug-free workplaces qualify for a 7½ percent discount on Workers' Compensation Insurance Premiums, and...

Certified employers can stop substance abusers from collecting Workers' Compensation medical benefits if they test positive for prohibited substances after an on-the-job injury and from collecting unemployment insurance if fired for a positive drug test.
