AI and Educator Evaluations

Experience Management, Talent Development, Training & Development

Presentation by Alan Lavizzo, Director of Human Resources & Brenda Smith, Chief Human Resources Officer, Cherry Creek School District #5, Greenwood Village, CO

In recent years, artificial intelligence (AI) has rapidly become a transformative force in education, offering unique opportunities to enhance and streamline the staff evaluation process. This presentation explores how K-12 districts can leverage AI to make evaluations more consistent, efficient, and aligned with local and state standards. AI has significant potential to increase efficiency in classroom observations by streamlining note-taking and capturing essential qualitative data quickly. For instance, ChatGPT can be used to summarize observation notes, providing a reliable, objective record of teacher performance. Additionally, AI can help reduce subjective interpretation, allowing for greater consistency in evaluation. With real-time capabilities, administrators can document observations on-site using voice-to-text AI, enabling immediate, accurate data capture. This efficiency is essential in large districts where ensuring a fair and timely evaluation process can be challenging. One of the most impactful benefits of AI lies in enhancing feedback loops between administrators and teachers. By using AI to generate feedback quickly, districts can make the feedback process more immediate, fostering timely adjustments and continuous growth. Throughout the presentation, ethical considerations will be highlighted, with a focus on data privacy and security as essential for safe AI integration. Strategies for minimizing AI-driven biases, which can affect fairness, will also be discussed. To ensure the effective use of these tools, professional development for HR and administrative staff is critical, equipping them with the skills needed to interpret and apply AI insights.

Evolving HR in K-12: From Compliance to People-Centered Operations

Experience Management, Total Rewards, Work-Life Integration

Presentation by Jennifer Hart, Chief Office of HR & Administration, Aiken County Public School District, Aiken, SC

As the demands on K-12 education systems grow, the role of Human Resources must adapt to focus more on people-centered strategies that support both educators and staff. This presentation explores the transformation from traditional HR to People Operations within the K-12 sector, emphasizing employee well-being, engagement, and the strategic use of data to improve workforce outcomes. Attendees will gain insights into how this shift can lead to a more supportive, collaborative, and efficient educational environment, fostering better performance and retention in schools. Key Takeaways: Fostering Staff and Educator Well-Being: Learn how shifting to People Operations can enhance the support systems for teachers and staff, improving overall job satisfaction and student outcomes. Strategic Use of Data in Education HR: Understand how data analytics can help identify workforce trends, predict needs, and develop proactive strategies to attract and retain top talent in schools. Building Collaborative School Cultures: Discover the benefits of breaking down silos and fostering partnerships between HR, administration, and educational teams to create a more responsive, engaged school workforce.

Grow Your Own Programs (GYOs) as a Key Recruitment and Retention Strategy

Experience Management, Talent Acquisition, Recruitment

Presentation by Ayelia Ali, New Teacher Developer & Stephanie Santarpio, Teacher Pathway Program Manager, Chelsea Public Schools, Chelsea, MA

School districts across the country are having to find innovative ways to recruit, retain a diverse teaching workforce. Grow Your Own (GYOs) programs are created to combat the problem of teacher shortages, while expanding the pipeline of new teachers with a focus on developing current talent already in our schools. At Chelsea Public Schools (CPS), a school district located in the Greater Boston area, there are two GYOs - The Teacher Pathway Program (TPP), and New Teacher Academy (NTA). Both TPP and NTA focus on recruiting and retaining a diverse, highly-qualified teaching workforce for Chelsea's students. CPS has had successes with both programs and has the fastest growing diversity rates in Massachusetts. At this session, you will learn about why these programs were created and how they were implemented. Attendees will gain insight from best practices learned and how to lead this work in districts and organizations.

Increasing Paraprofessional Retention

Experience Management, Total Rewards, Work-Life Integration

Presented by Jim Nichols, Chief Human Resources Officer, Indian Hill School District, OH

Join me to explore the strategies behind "Increasing Paraprofessional Retention" in the Indian Hill School District. As we face a consistent decline in retention rates, this presentation will provide a detailed look at our approach to reverse this trend by enhancing job satisfaction through opportunity and creatively looking at financially feasible compensation escalators for paraeducators. Participants will gain insights into the design and implementation of this model, which aligns with our district's strategic goals. We will share data-driven findings, discuss the challenges faced, and outline the comprehensive interventions aimed to stabilize this essential part of our workforce. By attending, you will walk away with practical approaches to improve retention rates, ensuring that paraprofessionals feel valued, supported, and motivated to continue their crucial roles within the educational community.

Launch Lincoln County: Setting New to Lincoln County School District Teachers Up for Success

Strategy, Talent Development, Orientation and Onboarding

Presentation by Dr. Tiana DeVries, Human Resources Director, Lincoln County School District, Lincoln County, OR

Time is precious. Time before students arrive is our only opportunity to launch new LCSD teachers into a positive experience in the district. Lincoln County School District hires 15-25% of its teachers each year. These new-to-LCSD teachers need one thing most of all: to be oriented to the district so they can be as effective as possible, as quickly as possible. This year's pilot program added five days to the previous program essentially doubling the onboarding of those new to LCSD and including two classroom days to plan and integrate the learning. Hear the feedback from the mentors, Teachers on Special Assignment, union, administration, and new teachers on how additional and differentiated professional development improved the experience of those new to our district. Learn more about what we did and how it worked.

Local Roots, Lasting Impacts: Growing a Teacher Apprenticeship Program

Process Management, Talent Acquisition, Recruitment

Presented by Carla Simons, Certification Manager, Baltimore County Public Schools, Towson, MD

This session highlights the design and implementation of the Baltimore Teacher Apprenticeship Program (BTAP), a partnership between Baltimore County Public Schools (BCPS) and Loyola University Maryland. BTAP aims to recruit, prepare, and retain special educators from the BCPS community, particularly from historically underrepresented backgrounds. The program addresses the teacher shortage, particularly in special education, while promoting equity and inclusion within the BCPS teaching workforce.
