

James Hirsch

James Hirsch is a wildlife coordinator with New Mexico Department of Transportation (NMDOT) and has been involved with the design and construction of wildlife crossing projects in New Mexico since 2013. James holds a Masters in Science in Fisheries and Wildlife Biology from Michigan State University and a Bachelors in Science in Forest Biology from SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry.

