

Matthew Popek Bio

Matthew Popek is the Transportation Planning Manager at the Montgomery County Planning Commission, where he has worked since 2015 on road, bridge, trail, and transit projects throughout Montgomery County along with regional project delivery, funding, and policy issues. A graduate of Penn State University and Temple University's master's program in community and regional planning, Mr. Popek has previous work experience with two townships, a county, and a TMA throughout the Philadelphia region. Matt received the American Planning Association Pennsylvania Chapter's 2021 Emerging Planner of the Year award at the state conference in Pittsburgh and currently serves on the Southeast Section council for APA-PA. Matt lives in his hometown of King of Prussia where he serves as the chair of the Upper Merion Township planning commission, is a founding member of a local community chorus, and is a huge Philly sports fan.
