

Dexter Malley, Panelist

Dexter Malley is the Division Chief of the Uncrewed Marine Systems Division at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) based in Gulfport, Mississippi. He brings extensive experience to his current role, with a background that includes key positions at the Naval Oceanographic Office, the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory, and DigiCOURSE LLC. Throughout his career, he has cultivated a robust skill set in project management, research, and strategy. Dexter holds an MBA in Business from the University of Arkansas Grantham, which he completed from 2006 to 2008.