At The University of Southern Mississippi, my tenure as Innovation and Entrepreneurship Program Manager is marked by an unwavering commitment to enhancing the economic impact of research through business development and technology transfer. With a focus on sustainable innovation programs, we partner with a broad network of stakeholders to further the university's mission and foster knowledge-based economic growth. Leading NG Consulting LLC, my expertise in new business development shines as we empower small businesses and contribute to the burgeoning blue economy. The collaboration with NOARC and local businesses to commercialize cutting-edge environmental technologies underscores our dedication to economic development and resilient community building.
