LETTER FROM THE EDITORS

Dear Review of Higher Education Community,

We started as editors of the Review of Higher Education (RHE) five years ago, which means our first term is at its end. Leading this journal and collaborating with the amazing RHE readership, authors, reviewers, editorial board members, editorial team, ASHE leaders, and the professionals at Johns Hopkins University Press (JHUP), our publisher, to bring outstanding articles and book reviews to scholars and practitioners around the globe are highlights of our careers. We are grateful to the ASHE Board, publications committee, and staff for extending to us the opportunity to continue with RHE for an additional three years. In the coming years, we will continue our efforts to always strengthen the journal and thoughtfully prepare for the transition to a new editorial team not too long from now.

As we end our first term, we have been taking stock of all that has been accomplished since we received the call from then ASHE President Kristen Renn who relayed the ASHE Board decision to offer us the RHE editorship based on the selection committee's and publications committee's recommendations. It feels like such a short time ago. Since our start, among many things, we re-opened submissions to the journal; reworked the manuscript management system; developed a process to post accepted manuscripts online prior to publication via Project Muse; increased the journal's impact; reshaped the editorial board so it adheres to ASHE's bylaws and is reflective of the field across areas of expertise, methods, institutions, and backgrounds; maintained a stellar editorial team, including as members of that team have transitioned in and out of their positions; enhanced the review process with a keen focus on humanizing (the ASHE conference theme from past ASHE president Joy Gaston Gayles) our interactions and communications as well as providing resources to reviewers to aid in improving review quality; managed the disruption of a pandemic on the journal; started RHE's social media presence; published award winning and quality arts-based and autoethnographic research; and increased RHE's transparency by creating and making available reports like this one.

In a message to the ASHE community on September 17 this year, we reported on our work to aid the Association in publishing past presidential addresses that had yet to appear in RHE's pages. As of this report, we have regularized the process for the publishing presidential addresses (which was lacking prior to our appointment), posted errata language for addresses that will not be published due to being missing or the past president requesting not to have it published, and published (or will soon publish) any addresses that were located and submitted by the past president along with language explaining why it was published later than what has been typical. This work was sparked by D-L Stewart's 2021 ASHE Presidential Address where he noted the omission of past presidential addresses, particularly those of Shaun Harper and Lori Patton Davis and linked this to anti-Blackness and unjust exclusion of Black voices in academia, RHE, and ASHE. Earlier this year, Black women ASHE members and allies started to resign from ASHE roles because of Lori Patton Davis's treatment by ASHE regarding her presidential address as well as other injustices and harms toward Black women (the ASHE Board of Directors sent a message about this to the ASHE community on March 20, 2024 and a follow up on August 19, 2024).

In response, RHE's editorial team and board determined that RHE needed to take steps to further address injustices built into the publishing process. Four task forces were created and charged with:

1. Reviewing RHE policies and procedures to root out anti-Blackness and imbedded racism and recommend steps forward;
2. Considering an ongoing section of the journal that centers epistemic injustice;
3. Creating a webinar series to tackle issues of anti-Blackness and gendered racism connected to RHE; and
4. Planning and delivering a related session for the ASHE community at the 2024 annual conference.

The task forces worked on their charges this past summer and fall. Their progress is briefly summarized on page 8 of this report. As an outgrowth from these efforts, we are excited to announce that Chrystal A. George Mwangi and Milagros Castillo-Montoya are now senior associate editors who are leading the implementation of a new section of the journal and have taken collective responsibility for continuing to push RHE toward being a more just publication.

RHE's accomplishments throughout these pages are a team effort. We remain deeply thankful for all who have poured time and energy into the journal, including the associate editors, managing editors, editorial assistants, editorial board, and ad hoc reviewers. In addition to the new senior associate editor positions mentioned above, we want to extend a special thank you and congratulations to Stephanie T.X. Nguyen, outgoing Managing Editor at Indiana University-Bloomington, who received a dissertation fellowship for the 2024-25 academic year. At Ohio State, in recognition of her time and leadership with RHE, Monica Quezada Barrera was promoted to Senior Managing Editor. In addition, we have welcomed Miras Sharipov and Arman Zhumazhanov as new managing editors at Indiana University-Bloomington and Mianmian Fei as editorial assistant at Ohio State. We also have seven colleagues rotating off the Editorial Board this year – Chayla Haynes Davison, Cindy Ann Kilgo, Angela Locks, Z Nicolazzo, Kelly Rosinger, and Xueli Wang. We welcome into their second three-year term on the board: Claudia García-Louis, Nicholas Hillman, and Robert Palmer. New to the editorial board after offering exceptional ad hoc reviews for several years are David Ayers, Nichole Margarita Garcia, Susan Gardner, Darrius Means, Meghan Pifer, D-L Stewart, Amy Stitch, and LaWanda Ward. Welcome to the RHE Editorial Board!

We are also deeply grateful to RHE authors for the ways they have advanced the field and how their work invites readers to think more deeply about higher education. They have been wonderful partners in the revision process and have helped the RHE team become better editors. They also encourage all of us to act on their intentional recommendations and implications, giving voice to change that should be seen in and beyond our field based on this scholarship.

As we move into our second term, we are working with JHUP, particularly Journals Publisher William Breichner, to shift to a subscription model that will likely make RHE's contents open to the public starting in 2025. We are excited about this change as it should increase significantly the reach and impact of authors' research and scholarship. We are also working on making RHE more receptive to international submissions, further building reviewer resources, and continuing to improve the journal's impact, which has increased during our first term as editors.

We are incredibly grateful to all who have engaged with and contributed to RHE over the last five years. RHE's success has been a community effort. As you look through this annual report, we hope you see progress and reminders that RHE is your/our journal. We look forward to working with you as we seek to build on the past five years to make the Review of Higher Education a better publication that continually improves publishing the best researchers have to offer.

RHE MISSION & IMPACT

MISSION

The Review of Higher Education (RHE) publishes empirically, historically, and theoretically based articles and scholarly reviews and essays that move the study of colleges and universities forward. The most central aspect of RHE is the saliency of the subject matter to other scholars in the field as well as its usefulness to academic leaders and public policymakers. Selection of articles for publication is based solely on the merits of the manuscripts with regard to conceptual or theoretical frameworks, methodological accurateness and suitability, and the clarity of ideas and gathered facts presented. RHE encourages a diversity of scholarly thoughts, perspectives, research designs, and methodological paradigms.

FROM SEPT 1, 2023-AUG 31, 2024

After a pause in receiving submissions, RHE began to receive submissions again on September 1, 2019. As a result, our first Annual Report covered the year that spanned from September 1, 2019 to August 31, 2020. Subsequent reports, including this one, follow the same September through the following August timeframe.

RHE TASK FORCE REPORTS

As stated in the Letter From The Editors, RHE's editorial team and board determined that RHE needed to take steps to further address injustices built into the publishing process. Four task forces were created and charged with:

- Reviewing RHE policies and procedures to root out anti-Blackness and imbedded racism and recommend steps forward;
- Considering an ongoing section of the journal that centers epistemic injustice;
- Creating a webinar series to tackle issues of anti-Blackness and gendered racism connected to RHE; and
- Planning and delivering a related session for the ASHE community at the 2024 annual conference.

These reports summarize the progress thus far.

TASK FORCE: RHE SESSION DURING ASHE REPORT

Members: Penny A. Pasque, Thomas Nelson-Laird & Rachelle Winkle-Wagner

This summer and early fall, we planned for an interactive session at the ASHE Annual Conference titled The Review of Higher Education Open Community Conversation on (In)Justice in Publishing. In this session, November 22, 2024, we engaged in a community conversation focusing on epistemic injustice within publishing processes as we work toward justice. We heard from each of the four RHE Task Forces working on short- and long-term structural change. The session was designed to be interactive as we encouraged the community to reflect on justice-related topics faced by ASHE/RHE communities relative to publishing substantively and methodologically field-shaping work. Finally, we created the next steps for moving RHE forward given the current socio/political milieu, so our field's journal is situated to do its best work to promote publishing justice and constructive debate of ideas. One of these ideas was in collaboration with the Task Force on Webinars - we crafted a working annotated bibliography of research about epistemic justice and injustice, asked people to add to the document, and this document will be posted on the RHE website by the start of the new calendar year. Another was inviting people to meet with Chrystal A. George-Mwangi and Milagros Castillo-Montoya as new senior associate editors who invited feedback on the new section of the journal.

TASK FORCE: POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

Co-Chairs: Antonio Duran & Demetri L. Morgan

Members: Tim Cain, Roman Liera & Judy Marquez Kiyama

The Subcommittee on RHE's policies and procedures aimed to identify opportunities for the journal to proactively and structurally address racism and anti-Blackness in its processes. Examples of recommended considerations include studying the purpose and utility of an anti-racism statement for RHE, developing or linking to a bias-free writing guide, and providing explicit resources for manuscript reviewers around anti-racism in the review process. We also identified instances in the bylaws where ASHE might make the process of recruiting racially and ethnically diverse editors more transparent and similar for editors recruiting racially and ethnically diverse associate editors and editorial board members.

TASK FORCE: WEBINAR SERIES REPORT

Co-Chairs: Erin Doran & Thomas Nelson Laird

Members: Angela Boatman, Milagros Castillo-Montoya & Rebecca Natow

The subcommittee tasked with putting together a webinar series met a couple of times over the summer and early fall. Our goal was to link the first webinar/online session to the in-person session during the ASHE Annual Conference and we started a working list of relevant readings. Our first webinar session will be hosted after the ASHE conference and engage in the topics of anti-Blackness and epistemic (in)justice in the publishing process. We will invite ASHE members to participate in group conversations about publication experiences and will consider further steps to move our scholarly community forward.

TASK FORCE: RHE ONGOING SECTION IN THE JOURNAL REPORT

Co-Chairs: Claudia García-Louis & Robert Palmer

Members: Federick Ngo, Chrystal George Mwangi & Deborah Carter

Recommendations from this sub-committee focus on creating a consistent and sustained emphasis on dismantling anti-Black epistemic injustices present within RHE practices and policies. We stress that dismantling anti-Black epistemic injustice become part of the culture of RHE. Notably, we worry that some actions will be temporary or siloed initiatives, particularly given that editorial boards will continue to change over time. Considering the aforementioned, below we provide our recommendations:

- Creating a senior associate editor position focused on addressing and assessing anti-Black, racist, misogynoirist, xenophobic, epistemically exclusionary policies, practices, and publishing within the RHE. This role could include advising on special issues or a section related to the topic, and guiding the revisions of reviewing practices and journal policies to ensure exclusionary practices are addressed. Furthermore, they could help evaluate RHE's progress towards related goals and outcomes. The role of this senior associate editor WOULD NOT be to conduct or implement "DEI" efforts as that is the role and responsibility of all members of the RHE editorial team. Instead, this position would serve as a means to maintain prioritization, accountability, and sustainability of anti-racism and anti-misogynoirism within RHE.
- Institute internal processes and procedures in RHE bylaws that will ensure institutionalization of the work all sub-committees have produced. This sub-committee spoke at length about ensuring that our recommendations were not a band-aid fix but rather led to sustainable change. Institutionalization is critical to ensuring that regardless of who is leading RHE, they are governed by bylaws and procedures committed to addressing anti-Blackness, anti-misogynoirist, xenophobic, discriminatory practices.
- Consider potential public-facing engagement opportunities, such as op-eds or podcasts to reach folks who may not be involved with RHE or ASHE.

UPDATE: As mentioned in the editor letter, Chrystal A. George Mwangi and Milagros Castillo-Montoya have been offered, and we are grateful, have accepted to serve as senior associate editors to advance this work. They have made important progress in the development of this section and in the spirit of transparency and community, will create opportunities to connect with them during and after the ASHE 2024 conference. They are welcoming feedback on the direction of the section from ASHE's multiple community members, especially ASHE's racially and multiply minoritized communities.

RHE ATTENTION

Article Views

Between September 1, 2023, and August 31, 2024, Project Muse recorded 117,398 article views. This is an 11.4% decrease compared to last year and an 88.4% increase compared to 2019-2020. Of these, 52,326 were for PDFs of articles, with the remainder for the HTML version. Project Muse currently consists of 723 journals, and RHE ranks 5th amongst all Project Muse journals in terms of total usage for the current year.

RHE Subscriptions

The following data correspond to the period beginning September 1, 2023 and ending August 31, 2024. The data represent figures regarding RHE's subscription rates, circulation and electronic access of articles and journal issues for the same time-period. According to Johns Hopkins University Press, there were 1,839 subscribers to Volume 47, which contains Issues 1-4. This number represents 1,780 members and 46 libraries that subscribed to the electronic version as well as 13 institutional subscriptions to the print versions. An additional 1,116 members have opted for the electronic-only version of the journal.

NEW SUBMITTED MANUSCRIPT WORKFLOW

SEPTEMBER 1, 2023 TO AUGUST 31, 2024

*Note: General timeline for the decision on the newly submitted manuscript. We do our best to meet these decision timeframes, however, goals can fluctuate depending on the type of manuscripts, time it takes to obtain a reviewer, time reviewers take to review, time of year, etc.

Note: The editors also serve in the Associate Editor role for some manuscripts.

 For revised manuscripts, we seek the same reviewers when possible.

PRODUCTION TIMELINE

MANUSCRIPT ACCEPTED

~ 1 MONTH

Once a manuscript is accepted to RHE, authors have 30 days to complete final revisions (as specified in acceptance letter) and send the finalized manuscript and signed Publication Agreements for all authors to the RHE Managing Editors.

FINAL CHECKS

1-2 WEEKS

Managing Editor will complete the First Production Technical Check, ensure that comments from the accept letter are addressed, then send along to the Editor for a final review of the manuscript. Managing Editor will reach out to author with any withstanding issues.

COPYEDITING

3-4 WEEKS

Finalized and approved manuscript is sent to the Copyeditor. Copyeditor focuses on formatting and grammar to ensure APA 7th edition compliance and sends back within 2-3 weeks. Managing Editor and Editor review copyedits and save a new "clean" copy.

FIRST PROOF

~2 WEEKS

The clean copy is sent to JHUP for First Proofs. JHUP's product team sends back proof typically within 2 weeks. Managing Editor reviews first proofs alongside copyedits and complete second technical check for all formatting and conversion related issues.

PROOF REVISIONS

~3 WEEKS

Managing Editor sends first proof and copyedited manuscript (with tracked changes) to authors for review. Author feedback is requested within a one week turn around. Managing Editor revises proof to include author feedback, then sends edited first proof to Editor for review. Final edits are sent to JHUP.

ONLINE FIRST AND DOI

3-4 WEEKS

JHUP produces final proof and sends to Editorial Team for review. Upon approval, article is given a DOI and placed in the Ahead of Print section in MUSE. It will later be slotted into an upcoming issue of RHE.

NEW SUBMITTED MANUSCRIPTS

RHE NOTABLES

This past year our graduate student editorial team grew from two .5 graduate students to four students, with one holding a .5 GRA position, and the other three holding less than .5 GRA positions. The graduate student editorial team helps authors at the initial manuscript submission stage, authors throughout the publication process, assist the Editors and Associate Editors in daily tasks, post on X, among other important responsibilities.

Senior Managing Editor

Monica Quezada Barrera (she, her, ella) is a PhD candidate at The Ohio State University, studying Higher Education & Student Affairs. Born and raised in Santa Ana, California, Monica began her college experience at her local community college, Santa Ana College, where she received her associate's in Liberal Arts. Monica then transferred to the University of California, Irvine, and received her bachelor's degrees in Social Policy and Public Service with a double major in Education. She obtained her master's degree from California State University, Long Beach, in Counseling option in Student Development in Higher Education. Her research interests focus on first-generation Latinx/a/o/e college students, family dynamics, and adult children of Latinx/a/o/e immigrants, while using testimonios and pláticas as methodologies.

Managing Editors

Miras Sharipov (he, him, his) is a PhD student in the Higher Education and Student Affairs Program at Indiana University-Bloomington. He holds two Master's degrees: one in Leadership in Education from Nazarbayev University, Kazakhstan (2022), and another in Tourism and Hospitality Management from Cesar Ritz Colleges, Switzerland (2011). Miras has 11 years of professional experience at Nazarbayev University, a leading research institution in Central Asia, where he has held various positions, including roles in the Dean's Office, International Cooperation, the Office of the President, and most recently served as Director of the Department of Student Services for two years. His research interests include student success, transformation of higher education institutions, early-career faculty experience, and related areas.

Arman Zhumazhanov (he, him, his) is an EdD student in the Higher Education and Student Affairs Program at Indiana University-Bloomington. His research interest focuses on exploring the intricacies of data-informed decision-making policies and critical analysis of corporate governance within higher education institutions. Before stepping into the doctoral program, Arman gained valuable experience in higher education administration roles in Kazakhstan. Serving as the Chief of Staff to the President of Nazarbayev University, he developed a comprehensive understanding of institutional leadership, policymaking, problem-solving, and crisis management. He holds a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Selcuk University, Master's degrees in Business Administration and Public Administration from Colorado State University-Pueblo and Nazarbayev University, respectively.

Editorial Assistant

Mianmian Fei (she, her, 她) is a PhD candidate at The Ohio State University, studying Higher Education & Student Affairs. Born and raised in China, Mianmian moved to the U.S. to pursue her bachelor's degree at Vanderbilt University, where she majored in Anthropology and Human and Organizational Development. She later earned a master's degree in Anthropology and Sociology from the Geneva Graduate Institute in Switzerland as a Hans Wilsdorf Scholar. Before starting her PhD studies, Mianmian worked as a Consultant at the UNESCO International Bureau of Education. During her PhD, she also serves as a Graduate Research Associate at the QualLab research center working on grants. Her research interests include international and comparative higher education, qualitative methodology, and the sociological aspects of education.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SERVICE

A large “thank you” to all our ad-hoc reviewers. Please see page 26 for a list of ad-hoc reviewers. Ad-hoc reviewers who do excellent reviews are often invited to serve on the editorial board. If you would like to be considered as an ad-hoc reviewer, then please let us know by filling out this information form: bit.ly/RHE_reviewer. We run reports of people who have served as ad hoc reviewers every year in order to determine who to consider inviting to the editorial board. We also review board member’s doctoral institutions, among other factors.

Note: The current Association for the Study of Higher Education bylaws limit board member terms to 3 years, and members typically serve one term with the potential to serve a second term, pending approval.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS, RESOURCES, AND HELPFUL LINKS

If you are interested in learning more about the Review of Higher Education, its submission guidelines, and reviewer resources. Please visit the following resources:

Submission and Book Review Guidelines

How can I submit a manuscript to the Review of Higher Education?

The Review of Higher Education is interested in empirical research studies, empirically-based historical and theoretical articles, and scholarly reviews and essays that move the study of colleges and universities forward. To learn more about RHE's submission guidelines, visit: <https://www.press.jhu.edu/journals/review-higher-education>

Does the Review of Higher Education accept international submissions?

RHE is a U.S. based higher education journal, and while many of our publications center around issues within U.S. higher education, we welcome international higher education manuscripts. International submissions must have clear implications for RHE readers and adhere to all APA 7th edition guidelines.

Who should I contact to submit a book review?

RHE publishes book reviews of original research, summaries of research, or scholarly thinking in book form. Graduate students are welcome to co-author book reviews, with faculty or seasoned research professionals as first authors. If you want to know whether RHE would consider a book review before writing it, please email Associate Editor Timothy Reese Cain who leads our book reviews at rhe-bookreviews@ashe.ws.

Reviewer Resources

How can I volunteer to be a reviewer?

If you are interested in becoming a reviewer for RHE, please sign up using our survey: bit.ly/RHE_reviewer. RHE's editorial team considers and selects reviewers based on a variety of factors for a three-year term. RHE welcomes recent graduates with a terminal doctoral degree as reviewers.

I am currently a graduate student, can I be a reviewer?

Reviewers for RHE must have a terminal EdD or PhD degree. Although current graduate students may not serve as a reviewer for RHE, we encourage you to practice serving as a reviewer during your graduate career by reviewing proposals for the ASHE conferences, serve as a reviewer on student-led journals, and/or contact your faculty advisor for advice.

Where can I find additional resources about RHE?

Visit RHE's Resources page on the ASHE website to find helpful articles on how to write a strong review (see "How to Write a Strong Review" resource) and watch a recording of RHE's 2022 ASHE Presentation, "Review of Higher Education: Humanizing ASHE's Journal" and RHE's 2020 ASHE Presentation "Looking Behind the Publishing Curtain: Understanding All the Steps and Dissecting Reviewer Comments."
