Patella, the chair of the committee, presented the findings of the survey and the committee's preliminary recommendations for the future organization and function of the association. The chair of the Computer Committee, Felix Just, S. J., unveiled the new CBA Web site, on which work has been progressing this past year.

CBA President Mark S. Smith called the annual business meeting to order at 3:55 P.M.

Daniel J. Harrington, S.J., gave the report of the chair of the Board of Trustees. He noted that the financial condition of the CBA at the end of the fiscal year was quite good, though more recent events have brought about much uncertainty regarding stocks and other investments. He also commented on the need for serious financial planning in the light of the recent settlement with the Bishops' Committee and the CBA strategic planning process. In particular, he finds it important to strike a balance between building up funds through investments and providing grants to graduate students and other worthy projects.

Stephen D. Ryan, O.P., gave the Treasurer's report, the substance of which had been previously distributed to the members present.

The Executive Secretary's report was given by Joseph Jensen, O.S.B. He thanked the Local Arrangements Committee and praised Ellen White, chair of the committee, for her outstanding work. He reviewed the Executive Board's decision, occasioned by the failure of the CCD to pay our share of royalties since 2008, to suspend all new grants but to honor those already committed. In the current year we gave $20,000 in Memorial Stipends and $6,571.70 for famine relief; with $144.04 for Bibles for prisoners, the total grant expenditure was $26,715.74. For the coming year grants will be $20,580 for scholarships and stipends, $20,000 for Memorial Stipends, and $6,582 (i.e., a tithe of membership dues), for a total of $47,162.

The membership had been informed earlier regarding the resolution of the impasse with the CCD concerning CBA's share of NAB royalties. There had been legal maneuvering and an unsuccessful attempt at resolution through a conciliation procedure provided by the USCCB. In the end there was an amicable resolution, in which CBA was helped by the generous service of Matthew Nolan of the firm of Arent Fox. It involved a compromise. Instead of the 25 percent we had been receiving, we will now receive 15 percent of NAB royalties, beginning with back payments for the three years of 2008–2010, and continuing for ten years; for the second five years 50 percent of the funds allotted will be given out as grants approved by the CBA but given by the CCD. We rejoice that the cordial relations that otherwise prevailed since the CBA's origin in 1936 have been restored. In fact, part of the contract is that we would name three members to meet with members from the CCD to form a liaison committee to examine matters of mutual concern and for cooperative endeavors. The three members named by the Executive Board are Joseph Jensen, O.S.B., Michael Patella, O.S.B., and Pauline A. Viviano.

Regarding the evaluation of Catholic Bible programs, as previously reported, in 2007 the Executive Board established an ad hoc Committee for Evaluation of Catholic Bible Programs. It finished its work and its report was made to the Executive Board by Ronald Witherup early last year; this year the board considered how to proceed with the report. Since we will now have regular liaison with the USCCB through our committee with the CCD, we will suggest that the report may be useful for their catechetical division. The report contains excellent criteria for such evaluation, and these will be made available on our new Web site; eventually we may also post some of the evaluations of individual programs there.

The Executive Board voted to put the names of Richard J. Clifford, S.J., and Linda Maloney in nomination for the Committee on Nominations.

The meeting in 2012, as previously announced, by the good offices of Gregory E. Sterling, will be at Notre Dame; the dates will July 28–31. Since this will be our 75th meeting, the program committee is planning to make this meeting special in a number of ways. Announcements regarding the 2013 meeting will be made at a later date.

Jensen announced that he expected the coming year to be his last as Executive Secretary. He said that it had seemed important to see the NAB royalties question resolved before leaving the position. The report of the Strategic Planning Committee suggests that next year would be a good time for transition.

Linda Day gave the report of the editor of the CBQ. The production of the journal has continued well this year, comprising 24 articles and 238 book reviews. The shift to a completely electronic submission, review, and record-keeping system, instituted last autumn, has been running smoothly and represents a beneficial improvement. The journal is receiving increasingly large numbers of submissions, which means that we must be increasingly selective in the percentage of them we are able to publish. A search committee has been formed to begin the process for the next general editor, with the goal of bringing forward a recommendation at next year's annual meeting. New book reviewers are always being sought. The report concluded with an expression of gratitude for those associate editors who are completing their terms of service: John Kloppenborg, Craig Koester, and Frederick Murphy.

In the absence of Christopher T. Begg, Joseph Jensen gave the report of the editor of OTA. The February and June 2011 issues have appeared; they contain a total of 1,282 article abstracts and 228 book abstracts. The October issue is currently at the typesetter. During 2011, OTA began abstracting a total of eleven additional journals.

Mark S. Smith gave the report of the editor of CBQMS. The CBQMS board welcomes three new board members in Old Testament: Barbara Green, Thomas B. Dozeman, and Steve L. McKenzie. The board announces the retirement of Frederick W. Danker, whose service to the CBQMS has been truly untiring and excellent. New appointments in New Testament and Second Temple Judaism are planned for the near future. This past year saw the publication of CBQMS 47, In Defense of Divine Justice: An Intertextual Approach to the Book of Jonah, by Catherine Muldoon. Currently in press is CBQMS 48, Celebrating Paul: Festschrift in Honor of Jerome Murphy-O'Connor and Joseph A. Fitzmyer, a volume dedicated to Paul's letters in recognition of the year of Saint Paul. The essays are authored by many of the best scholars of the field, and the volume is under the editorship of Peter Spitaler. Three manuscripts were reviewed for publication and not accepted. A fourth is currently under review. The CBA Web site has made it easier to order CBQMS volumes. The CBQMS has agreed to join the SBL's International Cooperation Initiative, which will make the CBQMS volumes more accessible in less economically developed countries.

The list of candidates for membership in the association was not read, since it had been available to the members throughout the meeting. In the name of the Committee on Credentials, Joseph Jensen, O.S.B., recommended the following candidates:
