

CATHY ROCHE STUDIO FOR ARCHITECTURE

Cathy Roche, AIA, LEED AP is President of Studio for Architecture in Ft. Myers, FL. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Design and a Master of Architecture from the University of Florida.

For nearly 30 years, Cathy's professional career has focused on formulating design concepts for various project types. She is often referred to as the "craftsman" because of her unique ability to integrate design and technical disciplines of the profession into one.

Cathy has worked on numerous Higher Education and Aviation projects throughout her career, including new construction and renovation at the University of Florida, University of Central Florida, Valencia College, Tampa International Airport, Boston Logan International Airport, Ft Lauderdale International Airport, Hamad International Airport, Orlando International Airport, and Southwest Florida International Airport. She has most recently led the design on a $250 million renovation for Southwest Florida International Airport, which will begin construction in the fall of 2020.

Cathy has earned numerous awards, including the 2007 AIA-Orlando Award of Merit for Lake County Middle School "DD," the 2001 University of Florida School of Architecture Young Architects Design Award, and the 1994 AIA Henry Adams Gold Medal for Design Excellence.
