

JOE WALKER WALKER ARCHITECTS

Joe is the founder and president of Walker Architects, Inc. and has been practicing architecture for over 20 years. By taking time to truly understand the client's needs, he demonstrates a commitment to excellence through the pursuit of innovative ideas. Joe has spent his career identifying and leveraging this understanding to deliver a customized solution that is focused on human interaction and wellbeing. He also specializes in architectural acoustics and is a recipient of the Robert Bradford Newman Foundation Award for Acoustics. Notable projects include the Exactech Campus Expansion and the Reitz Union Expansion and Renovation, both in Gainesville (FL).

Mentoring and inspiring emerging designers to know their craft is a passion for Joe. He devotes time to one-on-one coaching of developing architects, focusing their creativity as it applies to the built environment and helping them uncover real-world applications of their designs. He holds a Master of Architecture from the University of Florida and stays involved with the School of Architecture by serving on the UF School of Architecture Advisory Council.

Joe's personal pursuit of excellence focuses on skilled piloting of radio-controlled aircraft. He is a past president of the National Society for Remote Control Aerobatics and won the National Championship title in 2018.
