Second seminar July 18

By Paul Tash

Georgia Amusement Journal

Looking to build on its successful first seminar for retailers in May, the Georgia Amusement and Music Operators Association (GAMOA) is sponsoring a second seminar Wednesday, July 18, in Savannah.

The seminars, co-sponsored by the Georgia Association of Convenience Stores (GACS), are focusing exclusively on retail COAM issues. GAMOA representatives are hoping they can capitalize on the success of the inaugural event in Marietta.

"We were excited to see the incredible turnout of retailers," GAMOA President Shawn Fellows said.

Retailers afterward provided a great deal of positive feedback with one saying he learned "more in two hours than I have over the last three years," Fellows said. The feedback showed the seminar accomplished its mission.

Z2 LLC, owned by Ayaz Virani, was the winning bidder at last month's public auction for a Class B master license, the Georgia Lottery Corp. announced. The winning bid was $900,000.

The GLC ran the public auction May 3 at its headquarters in downtown Atlanta. About 40 people gathered to watch six pre-qualified bidders participate in the auction, which lasted about 5 minutes with auctioneer Bob Benton presiding.

Proceeds go the Georgia's HOPE Scholarship and Pre-K educational programs. The COAM industry has raised about $140 million since 2013 for the Hope Scholarship and Pre-K educational programs. GLC CEO Gretchen Corbin welcomed the bidders be-

"Retailers have the most critical role in increasing the overall profitability of COAMs, as they are the sole source of interaction with the players. The staff can promote responsible play and answer questions for new players."

Lottery officials provided a detailed video presentation that covered monthly reporting, the 50 percent rule, the change of Master forms and ways that a retailer can improve the environment for COAMs within their store. Attendees heard from various department heads about the variety of compliance requirements and got the chance to ask a multitude of questions. Georgia Lottery Corp.

plying for a COAM license, licensees should verify they have no outstanding tax liabilities. Contact the Department of Revenue (DOR) for the State of Georgia at (404)417-4445 to obtain a status on any outstanding tax liabilities.

Apply for the correct license type – Licensees need to make sure they are applying for the correct type of license (Master, Location, Manufacturer or Distributor) and the correct class of license (Class A and/or Class B). Location licensees who are in possession of both Class A and Class B machines in the same business location, or anticipate having both Class A and Class B machines in the same business location anytime during the licensing year, must apply for a Class B license.

Respond to requests for information – Respond to information requests from the Retailer Contracts Administration (RCA) Department promptly. Failure to respond to any information request may result in the denial of your COAM application.

Have registration information – Licensees should ensure they have all registration information available prior to logging into the licensing application including your www.gacoam.com username and password, State Tax Identification (STI) number, method of payment information and any identification or citizenship information that may be required to complete your application.

Update officers/owners/shareholders – Applicants must ensure

ALL officer/owner/shareholder information has been updated with the DOR prior to submitting a COAM application.

A "Personal Information" page must be completed for each officer/owner/shareholder when submitting a COAM application.

Provide true and correct information on applications – GLC recommends licensees provide the contact information and email address for the owner or owners of record, rather than that of the LLHs accountant or bookkeeper. Make sure and provide the true and correct contact information, email address, and home address when applying for 2019 COAM license or go to www.gacoam.com at any time and update your information. Owner information may be updated using the following steps:

- Log into www.gacoam.com;

- Click "Licenses" submenu at top of page;

- Select the business from the drop-down list;

- Click "Account Info" button;

- Click the green check on the right side of screen under "Owner Contact Info;"

- Click "Edit" button to update information;

- Update information;

- Click "Verify Address" button (if necessary);

- Click "Save Changes" button;

- Click "Yes, Save" button.

Updating information will ensure the timely and complete evaluation of applications, the GLC said. Failure to provide updated information may result in the denial of an application. For help with accessing accounts, call the GLC COAM Helpline at 1 (800) 746-8546 and select Option 6 and then 2.

fore the auction started and praised the state's "partnership" with the COAM industry.

"I appreciate the funding (the industry) has brought to education," she added. "We're excited at the Georgia Lottery Corp. (for the auction)."

Pre-qualification was required to participate in the auction. To be considered for qualification as a bidder at the auction, a person or entity must have submitted a:

- COAM Pre-Qualification Auction Participation Form;
- COAM Class B Master License Auction Deposit Letter;
- And a $100,000 deposit.

Winning bidder Z2 LLC will have its $100,000 deposit go toward the $900,000 purchase price. The other five bidders had their deposits returned. The $900,000 winning bid does not cover the $5,000 master license fee.

No information has been released on the next license auction.

Get to know candidates, and vote

By Shawn Fellows GAMOA President

State government can play a huge role in helping or hurting Georgia's business climate. That's doubly true for a regulated industry like COAM.

That's why it's hugely important that our members get involved, develop relationships with our local and state elected officials and push for policies that provide for the long-term growth of our industry.

On July 24, there are primary election runoffs for both parties. The Democrats have already nominated their candidate for governor, former House Minority Leader Stacey Abrams, and the Republicans will choose between Lt. Gov. Casey Cagle and Secretary of State Brian Kemp for governor and between Sen. David Shafer and former Rep. Geoff Duncan for lieutenant governor. Depending on where you live in Georgia, there might be numerous other important election decisions down ballot.

Our industry has seen years of stability and prosperity because we have worked within the system to achieve policies that establish clear guidelines for the industry. It's provided us with more regulatory certainty, and it's also established a vital partnership with the state that is paying massive dividends for the HOPE and Pre-K programs. In fact, just as good policy has given the industry stability, so have we given these programs stability. The COAM partnership has accounted for much of recent growth in Lottery revenues that have stemmed the steady decline of how much of tuition is covered by the scholarship.

As we often discuss, there's still tremendous upside for our partnership to achieve. Working alongside our tremendous government affairs team at the Capitol, we will achieve those goals by constantly meeting with and educating lawmakers on our industry.

Our senators and representatives aren't full-time legislators. They balance those the contributions we make toward keeping rural convenience stores in business in areas where there are few other options and the important role that plays in maintaining the tax base for rural counties.

But we don't need to wait until they're in office to build those relationships and start educating on our issues. An election year provides tremendous opportunities to arm future elected officials with information about the contributions we're making to the state.

On the flip side, it's on us not only as businesspeople but as citizens to educate ourselves as well. We need to find out where the candidates stand on issues important to our industry and then actively support those who share our vision for moving Georgia forward.

And then we have to make sure that we, our families and our employees take time to do their duty and go vote. Early voting begins July 2 for the runoff. There's plenty of time between then and July 24 to get to the polls and let your voice be heard.

GAMOA's mission: "To Promote and Serve Georgia's Coin Operated Amusement and Music Industry."

We don't need to wait until they're in office to build those relationships and start educating them on our issues.

responsibilities with jobs and businesses of their own back home. It's wrong to assume that any of them are experts on every issue that comes before the General Assembly.

They need to hear from us. They need to hear about our partnership with Lottery and how we can promote that to bring in even more revenue for the state. They need to hear about

AMOA monitoring bank-account issue

By Lori Schneider
AMOA Executive VP

The second quarter of 2018 has been a busy one legislatively for the Amusement and Music Operators Association (AMOA).

On April 17, the association made its spring legislative trek to our nation's capital along with American Amusement Machine Association (AAMA), where delegations from both associations visited 13 congressional offices. The meetings were orchestrated by Dentons LLP, who provides legislative counsel to both organizations.

April's visits were both informative and productive as AMOA continues to work the bank account closure issue since the Department of Justice's (DOJ) rescinding of Operation Choke Point last August. One of the offices visited was the office of Congressman Blaine Luetkemeyer (R-MO, 3rd District), who wrote and sponsored H.R. 2706, the Financial Institution Customer Protection Act of 2017 passed in December.

When visiting offices on the Senate side, our delegation strongly encouraged support of the Congressman's bill which passed the House almost unanimously (395-2). During the visits, AMOA presented evidence the account closures continue to occur even after the DOJ's August 2017 directive to end Operation Choke Point once and for all.

In addition to the above visits, AMOA's GRC Chair Tim Zahn and AMOA Executive VP Lori Schneider stayed an extra day for a face-to-face meeting with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). This meeting was a follow up to an initial discussion Schneider conducted with the OCC back in February.

Also added to the April slate of meetings was a visit to Bank of America to address the account closures first-hand.

Here's what was learned from the April dialogue:

- Should you receive a questionnaire from your bank, although lengthy and intrusive, be sure to fill them out and return them on or before the requested deadline. If you don't, you will most likely have your account(s) shut down.

- Should you experience an account closure, please be sure to reach out to your House and Senate representatives and ask with one of the large banking institutions, it is strongly suggested you begin building a relationship with your community bank or regional bank as these seem to be more willing to work with our industry. Some members are finding credit unions are willing to work with them.

- AMOA will continue to educate regulators on who our industry is, and who we are not.

- We will continue to support and make a push on the Senate side in support of the Financial Institution Customer Protection Act of 2017.

AMOA has recently updated its website providing steps operators can take should they experience account closures. This information can be accessed at www.amoa.com. Just click on bank account closure under quick links.

AMOA is committed to fighting this issue and will continue this mission from multiple angles. We'll continue to work with legislators in both the House and Senate. We'll continue the dialogue with the OCC and other regulatory agencies such as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB). We'll also be meeting with several of the large banking institutions in the very near future.

AMOA's next visit to Washington, D.C. is scheduled for Wednesday, June 27.

For more information, call (815) 893-6010 or email lori@amoa.com.

We will continue to educate regulators on who our industry is, who we are not.

them to investigate. We learned these inquiries do put pressure on the banks as it moves it up the chain of command. If you need assistance in how to go about this, please reach out to the AMOA office and we are happy to help.

- Please contact the AMOA office and provide a copy of the form letter you receive from your bank closing your accounts. These letters are powerful evidence when we visit the congressional offices. AMOA marks out all identifying information except for city and state.

Banilla expansion brings changes

Smith relocates to Norcross, Lewicki goes to Milwaukee

By Paul Tash

Georgia Amusement Journal

It's an exciting time for Banilla Games. The gaming company continues to expand not only in Georgia, but across the country.

Banilla recently opened sales offices in Norcross and Milwaukee, and it also has entered the electronic pull-tab market in Virginia, said Dan Owens, the new marketing director for Banilla and Grover Gaming. Grover is the software development part of the company, while Banilla is the sales and marketing side. The company is looking to join the North Dakota pull-tab market later this summer.

In Georgia, Michael "Smitty" Smith, Banilla's national sales manager, has relocated from the company's Greenville, NC, headquarters to the new Norcross office, located at 1555 Oakbrook Drive, Suite 125. Banilla already had a "strong tech team" based in Georgia, Owens said, but the company's continued growth in the Georgia market prompted Smith's move.

"I am excited to finally be in Georgia," Smith said, "where I can spend more time with customers and provide a greater level of support for the technicians and operators that visit our Norcross office. Being in the middle of the action is where I like to be. I'm ready to hit the ground running. We've seen tremendous growth in Georgia, and there's no reason to believe it will slow down any time soon."

Smith also is a director for the Georgia Amusement and Music Operators Association (GAMOA), which works to enhance the state's COAM industry.

"Serving on the Board of Directors for GAMOA is an honor," he said. "And being just up the road in Norcross is convenient for our regular meetings in McDonough. I couldn't ask for a better situation."

Banilla opened its Milwaukee office last month, and Wisconsin native Dan Lewicki is relocating to Milwaukee from Greenville to lead the sales team. Chris Kawaski also is moving from Greenville to Milwaukee to become its office manager. The 5,900 square-foot office includes a showroom and fully stocked warehouse.

"I am looking forward to coming back home to Wisconsin, where I can spend more time visiting operators, and focusing on new ways for Banilla Games to be part of their future success," Lewicki said. "We are open for business and ready to serve our customers face to face."

Owens said it's an "exciting time" for Banilla and Grover. The popular Fusion games are leading Banilla's growth in Georgia, he said, but "new games and machines" are coming out soon.

"We are on the cutting edge," Owens said. "We develop our own games and market our own games. We can get out (games) in the market place just about quicker than anyone."

Growing Smart Software in new office

SMART Software, providing industry-leading software solutions, has moved its headquarters across the street from 1400 to 1300 South Raney, in Effingham, IL.

The new office space both increases the office footprint and supports the company's growth strategy for the future, a company news release said. The newly remodeled, larger space allows for additional hires across all departments.

Last year SMART Software showed 100 percent growth, and 2018 "looks to eclipse that mark, as well," the release said.

"SMART's rapid growth in the ATM, amusement, and gaming spaces coupled with expanding influence in various field service related markets has led to our expansion into this new office," said Bob Willenborg, owner of SMART Software.

Many customers from a multitude of different industries benefit from deploying Smart Software, the release said. One of those is Shawn Fellows, CEO at Global Games and a longtime SMART Software user.

"With the high level of detail provided, to the reports, to the easy to follow instructions, the system works beyond all of our expectations," Fellows said. "We have been able to identify areas to increase efficiency, reduce time, cut waste and minimize inventory loss."

Last year, SMART completed a total brand refresh, doubled its staff, doubled its clientele base, and released numerous powerful new features to their suite of software products. On top of that, the company has entered several new market spaces, including convenient store chains, oil companies, entertainment companies, and several other supplementary fields.

For over 20 years, SMART has been a premium service management system for all types of service companies. It has developed industry-leading components, highly specialized for amusement, gaming, and ATM operators.

"We are active in our community and live by the cornerstones of hard work and integrity which reflect in the quality of our products and our outstanding customer service," Willenborg said.

For more information, contact Nathan McQuillen, sales and marketing director, at 217-347-4302 or Nate@smart.software.

Gaming Expo set for Las Vegas Oct. 8-11

Registration is officially open for Global Gaming Expo 2018 (G2E), the world's premier international gaming trade show and educational event presented by the American Gaming Association (AGA) and organized by Reed Exhibitions.

G2E will return to the Sands Expo and Convention Center Oct. 8-11 for a high-powered event showcasing all aspects of the gaming industry, including the show's first-ever Sports Betting Symposium. The education tracks run Oct. 8-11 with exhibits open in Expo Hall Oct. 9-11.

Following the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that deemed the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act (PASPA) unconstitutional, G2E's Sports Betting Symposium will gather experts from around the world to prepare gaming professionals at all levels for unprecedented growth opportunities in the sports betting sector across the U.S. Symposium participants will also receive an expert-led tour of sports betting solutions providers in the comprehensive Expo Hall.

"In the wake of the Supreme Court's decision, there is no better place than G2E to launch this Sports Betting Symposium," said Geoff Freeman, president and CEO of the American Gaming Association. "The conversation around sports betting will continue to evolve in the coming months, and the symposium will allow G2E attendees to engage in interactive sessions on this unprecedented growth opportunity for the U.S. gaming industry."

"The show floor will also support this initiative with an expanded presence from companies supporting sports betting," said Korbi Carrison, Reed Exhibitions/G2E Event Director. "We've put a major focus on the evolution of G2E to ensure it is staying ahead of the curve as the gaming industry changes. The expo hall will feature highly anticipated offerings from across the core gaming sector, along with exhibitors presenting their products in sports betting technology, iGaming, integrated resort products and other non-gaming amenities."

In addition to the Sports Betting Symposium, G2E 2018 will deliver a robust and diverse set of educational tracks for attendees. Flexible education packages allow attendees to customize their G2E

Connect, power up machines

To ensure accurate reporting of financial data to the Central Accounting System, the Georgia Lottery Corporation (GLC) says it is imperative the Location License Holders (LLHs) ensures all equipment remains connected to the site controller and powered up at all times.

The GLC maintains a record of those LLHs that are repeat offenders of failing to ensure the continuous connectivity and operation of Class B COAMs.

Failure to comply with these procedures may result in fines up to $50,000, suspension and/or revocation of the license.
