Kitchen over $200,000

Classic Reimagined

Classic Reimagined centers on transforming a cramped, isolated kitchen into a spacious, high functional hub for a young family of four. The existing kitchen's limited footprint left the homeowners constantly bumping into one another, prompting the desire for a layout that better supported everyday living. To create seamless flow with the rest of the home, the entire kitchen was relocated from the front of the house to the rear, allowing for a more intuitive connection to adjacent spaces. The dining room walls were moved to expand the footprint, resulting in an open, family-friendly kitchen that blends functionality with timeless style.

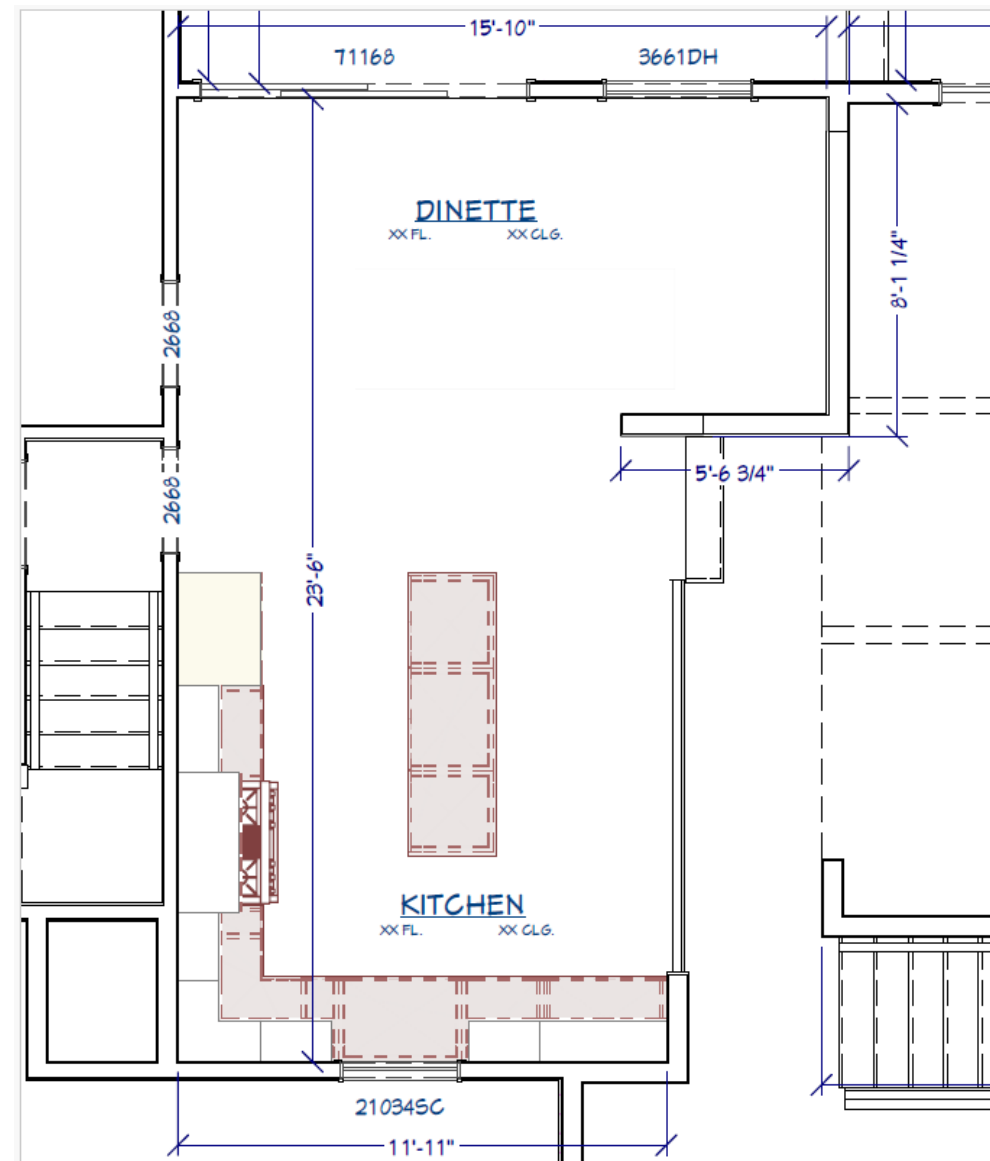

Client's Needs

The client felt their kitchen no longer reflected the way they live today-its tight footprint, limited functionality, and disconnected flow leave the heart of the home feeling constrained.

After

Elevating the Aesthetics

The client sought a remodeled space that embodies texture, warmth, and understated elegance while preserving a cohesive sense of flow and energy consistent with the rest of the home. This vision emphasized the use of natural materials, including a fluted concrete range hood with coordinating island end panels, complemented by warm oak flooring and open wet bar shelving to create a balanced and inviting environment.

Function Through Thoughtful Design

Functionality for daily family use was a key priority, closely followed by the desire for a layout that would support effortless entertaining. To meet these needs, the design incorporates a custom eat-in banquette with integrated storage positioned opposite the pantry, offering a comfortable and practical setting for family gatherings. Additionally, a centrally located island—situated just steps from the wet bar—serves as a key entertaining hub, ensuring smooth movement and connectivity throughout the space.
