Introduction to the DISCstyles™ Leadership Report

Congratulations on taking the DISCstyles Leadership Assessment™. Mastering the leadership adaptability techniques outlined in this report may be one of the most important leadership skills you ever learn. Many of us grew up believing the wisdom of treating others the way you would like to be treated: the Golden Rule. We soon realized that another practical rule to sell by seemed to be what Dr. Tony Alessandra calls The Platinum Rule®: Treat others the way they want to be treated.

Here is the most valuable feature of this report: Although the first part of this report focuses on your behavioral style, the true value is contained in the second section called “Application.” Leadership mastery of The Platinum Rule only consists of three simple steps: 1) Know your natural behavioral tendencies, 2) Pick up on your customer’s observable behaviors while leading, and 3) Adapt your leadership style to fit the employee’s work style. That’s it! Now, here’s the “Aha!” moment for you: You don’t even need to understand your own style to be able to read another person and adapt to their work style!

This report is every bit as much prescriptive (remedies for connecting with others... today!) as it is descriptive (getting you to understand your own DISC behavioral style). Has your leadership process ever succeeded with one person, then “bombed out” with the very next employee? We all have experienced this and shrugged it off thinking, “That’s just the way it is.” However, things do not have to be that way. Nearly every leadership interaction with each employee can be a success - if you know how to make it happen!

If you are interested in improving your leadership results, we recommend that you start reading the section on “Application” first, practice the proven techniques, then return to this report and read the first section about the strengths and weaknesses of your behavioral style. Your ability to recognize the “style mode” being displayed by another person, and making small adaptations in the pace and focus of the conversation is the quickest, surest path to leadership mastery!

BEHAVIORAL STYLES

Historical, as well as contemporary, research reveals more than a dozen various models of our behavioral differences, but many share one common thread: the grouping of behavior into four basic categories. The DISCstyles System focuses on patterns of external, observable behaviors using scales of directness and openness that each style exhibits. See the table below. Because we can see and hear these external behaviors, it becomes much easier to “read” people. This model is simple, practical, and easy to remember and use. See page 24 of this report for a summary of each of the styles.

STYLE	TENDENCIES
Dominance	Tends to be direct and guarded
Influence	Tends to be direct and open
Steadiness	Tends to be indirect and open
Conscientious	Tends to be indirect and guarded

HOW TO USE THIS REPORT

This DISC report is divided into two parts. Part I focuses on understanding your DISC style characteristics. Please note that there is no “best” style. Each style has its unique strengths and opportunities for continuing improvement and growth. Any behavioral descriptions mentioned in this report are only tendencies for your style group and may or may not specifically apply to you personally. Part II discusses the concept of adaptability and offers several action plans for you and others who interact with you.

ADAPTABILITY

In addition to understanding your style, the report will identify ways that you can apply your style strengths or modify your style weaknesses in order to meet the needs of a particular prospect or customer. This is called adaptability. Social scientists call it “social intelligence.” There has been a lot written lately on how your social intelligence is just as important as your Intelligence Quotient (IQ) in being successful in today’s world. In some cases, social intelligence is even more important than IQ. The concept of adaptability is discussed in detail in the What is Behavioral Adaptability? section of this report.

Part I Understanding Yourself

General Characteristics

The narration below serves as a general overview of your behavioral tendencies. It sets the stage for the report which follows, and provides a framework for understanding and reflecting on your results. We've occasionally provided some coaching ideas so that you can leverage your strengths whenever possible to maximize your personal success.

You show the ability to meet new people easily and confidently. Some individuals are reticent about meeting others, but you have a warmth and comfort to your style that makes new acquaintanceships easy for you. Your inherent optimism also helps exude a personal confidence without coming off as arrogant. It's a rare gift to show confidence while keeping your ego in check, and others are likely to welcome this style.

You score like those who prefer to establish long-term relationships, rather than brief, superficial ones. This perhaps comes from your preference toward stability in your livespace, and longer-term relationships may bring that stability. Friendships and acquaintanceships you have made in the past are important to you, even now.

Sample, your score pattern suggests a high degree of persistence and patience in working on projects. This can be especially important when the assignments are long, detailed, and involve a multitude of personal or complex tasks. Where others may lose patience and perhaps allow overall quality to lapse, you bring a unique pulse and tempo that can serve as a model for others.

With regard to decision making, you tend to listen carefully to alternatives before making a judgment. The decisions you tend to make are not knee-jerk or crisis reactions, but rather thoughtful deliberations taken in a manner that considers the full scope of outcomes. This doesn't mean that all of your decisions are necessarily correct, just that they are informed.

Sample, the responses you gave indicate that you tend to be unselfish and sensitive to the needs of others. This is a rare type of generosity that comes with no strings attached, hidden agendas, or ulterior motives. People who score like you get a genuine "rush" when they are helping others. That's the up-side. The flipside is that you may need to monitor yourself closely to make sure you are not spreading yourself too thin in your efforts to please everybody.

Your response pattern to the instrument indicates that you have an empathetic listening style. As you know, this is a rare gift. Some listening skills can be taught, but the inherent, sincere listening that you demonstrate is something innate.

Others may tend to seek you out for assistance or advice. This is because they perceive you as being sensitive to their needs, and because you provide a stable and consistent point of view for them. You may be seen as a coach or counselor that they can count on to listen to ideas and input. That's good, as long as it doesn't hamper your ability to complete your own tasks.

You score like those who are socially poised without being overly controlling. You have the ability to project confidence and poise that is perceived as sincere and genuine. Others are likely to notice this, allowing you to develop trust and credibility with them easily.

Your Strengths

What You Bring to the Organization

You are likely to display your strength characteristics rather consistently. For the most part, these qualities tend to enhance your effectiveness within your organization. Work Style Preferences provide useful insights as you work in a job or as you work together on a team or family project. They are the talents and tendencies you bring to your job. Check the two most important strengths and the two most important work style tendencies and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

Your Strengths:

- Your excellent listening style stands as a model for others to observe and follow.
- You are a good listener.
- You are very people-oriented and, as a result, are able to talk with new people very easily in small groups or in large audiences.
- You work hard to achieve the team's goals and objectives.
- Your strong optimism helps motivate the team toward their goals.
- You demonstrate a high degree of patience in working with others.
- You bring a high "sincerity factor" to the team climate.

Your Work Style Tendencies That You Bring to the Job:

- On the job, you have a strong need to be patient, polite, and create an environment of good-will for internal and external stakeholders.
- On the job, you tend to say "yes" more often than "no," when asked to help out with a colleague's project or problem.
- You show a high degree of persistence in working on projects, especially over the long haul.
- Your empathetic nature and sensitivity toward people may lead others to seek you out as a coach or counselor, or ask to assist them with a personal or team problem.
- You meet new people easily and prefer networking with others rather than working in solitary conditions.
- You tend to be an excellent "teacher" to peers on the team, at all levels of the organization.
- You are optimistic and motivated to be an excellent team player, able to defer your ego when working with others who may prefer having more control of the situation.

Your Motivations (Wants) and Needs

What motivates you? People are motivated by what they want. What do you really want? Our behaviors are also driven by our needs. Each style has different needs. If one person is stressed out, they may need quiet time alone; another may need social time around a lot of people. Each is different and simply meeting their needs. The more fully our needs are met, the easier it is to perform at an optimal level. Check the two most important motivators (wants) and the two most important needs and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

You Tend to Be Motivated By:

- Evidence that a new process has been successful in similar applications.
- A supervisor, manager, or board who practices a democratic leadership process.
- A work culture that is supportive of family activities and commitments.
- Projects and assignments that provide interpersonal contact, and an opportunity to help both internal and external stakeholders.
- Identification with the organization, team, and others with whom a spirit of work responsibility has been established.
- Acceptance as a positive and supportive member of the organization and team.
- Flexibility to circulate and talk with a variety of people.

People With Patterns Like You Tend to Need:

- Encouragement to keep the positive spirit and optimism when the pressure is on.
- Detailed delegation of responsibilities, to reduce ambiguity and confusion.
- To be more realistic and ambitious in setting deadlines for team projects.
- To get better control of files and record keeping.
- Increased urgency in decision making.
- A sense of belonging to the team or organization as a whole.
- To learn to say "no" more often in order to avoid spreading yourself too thin.

YOUR MOTIVATIONS Ideal Work Environment

Everybody is motivated...however; they are motivated for their own reasons, not somebody else's reasons. By understanding your motivations, you can create an environment where you are most likely to be self-motivated. Check the two most important environment factors and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

You Tend to Be Most Effective In Environments That Provide:

- Support and appreciation of your individual efforts.
- Specialized assignments that also involve working and communicating with a variety of people.
- A favorable working climate containing positive attitudes and optimistic spirit.
- A balance between some stable, predictable work activities and some variety and change on a regular basis.
- A participatory manager or board with whom a democratic relationship has been established.
- A work culture that takes pride in the systems, processes, and people working behind the scenes.
- A work culture that allows for your natural interest in helping others learn and grow professionally.

The I Style

Behavior and Needs Under Stress

Under Stress You May Appear:

- Superficial
- Impulsive
- Overeager
- Inconsistent
- Wasteful of time

Under Stress You Need:

- Action and interaction
- Prestige
- A quick pace for stimulation and excitement

Your Typical Behaviors in Conflict:

- If a conflict persists or your anger increases, you are likely to lash out with a strong verbal attack on the other person. This may have a startling effect on others since it is so unlike your normal behavior.
- You may experience a desire to get even if someone thwarts a major component of your personal agenda; however, you are not very likely to follow through. You may choose to overlook the matter in order to preserve the relationship or you may simply lash out in anger.
- You are quite uncomfortable with conflict, aggression and anger. You do whatever you can do to avoid them. If possible, you may physically avoid an environment filled with conflict or anger. If that is not possible, you will probably seek to use your natural humor and story-telling ability to reduce the level of tension. If neither approach works, you may attempt to ignore the conflict. Given your strong focus on relationships, however, this tactic is rarely successful.

Strategies to Reduce Conflict and Increase Harmony:

- Be sure to fulfill all of your commitments. If you will be unable to keep a commitment or meet a deadline, inform the people involved as soon as possible. Do not assume that others will automatically step in to cover for you.
- Take time to clarify the commitments and expectations of others. Do not make any assumptions about what others will do. Always get a specific commitment.
- Recognize that you can never resolve a conflict by avoiding it. Risk damaging a relationship or losing someone's approval by stating your feelings and clarifying your expectations. Be sure, of course, to listen attentively to the responses of others.

Communication Tips and Plans for Others

The following suggestions can help others who interact with you understand and be aware of your communication preferences. To use this information effectively, share it with others and also discuss their preferences.

Check the two most important ideas when others communicate with you (do's & don'ts) and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

When Communicating with Sample, DO:

- Plan some extra time in your schedule for talking, relating, and socializing.
- Break the ice with a brief personal comment.
- Plan to talk about things that support his dreams and goals.
- Ask for his input regarding people and specific assignments.
- Be certain to conclude the communication with some modes of action and specific next steps for all involved.
- Present your ideas and opinions in a non-threatening way.
- Provide assurances about his input and decisions.

When Communicating with Sample, DON'T:

- Leave the idea or plan without backup support.
- Be impersonal or judgmental.
- Leave decisions hanging in the air. Be certain all decision points have reached closure and result in plans for action.
- Be vague or ambiguous.
- Let the discussion with him get caught in dreams too much, otherwise you'll lose time.
- Offer assurances and guarantees you can't fulfill.
- Manipulate or bully him into agreeing.

Communication Plan with the DOMINANT Style

CHARACTERISTICS:	SO YOU...
Concerned with being #1	Show them how to win, new opportunities
Think logically	Display reasoning
Want facts and highlights	Provide concise data
Strive for results	Agree on goal and boundaries, the support or get out of their way
Like personal choices	Allow them to "do their thing," within limits
Like changes	Vary routine
Prefer to delegate	Look for opportunities to modify their workload focus
Want others to notice accomplishments	Compliment them on what they've done
Need to be in charge	Let them take the lead, when appropriate, but give them parameters
Tendency towards conflict	If necessary, argue with conviction on points of disagreement, backed up with facts; don't argue on a "personality" basis

Communication Plan with the INFLUENCING Style

CHARACTERISTICS	SO YOU...
Concerned with approval and appearances	Show them that you admire and like them
Seek enthusiastic people and situations	Behave optimistically and provide upbeat setting
Think emotionally	Support their feelings when possible
Want to know the general expectations	Avoid involved details, focus on the "big picture"
Need involvement and people contact	Interact and participate with them
Like changes and innovations	Vary the routine; avoid requiring long-term repetition by them
Want others to notice THEM	Compliment them personally and often
Often need help getting organized	Do it together
Look for action and stimulation	Keep up a fast, lively, pace
Surround themselves with optimism	Support their ideas and don't poke holes in their dreams; show them your positive side
Want feedback that they "look good"	Mention their accomplishments, progress and your other genuine appreciation

Communication Plan with the STEADY Style

CHARACTERISTICS	SO YOU...
Concerned with stability	Show how your idea minimizes risk
Think logically	Show reasoning
Want documentation and facts	Provide data and proof
Like personal involvement	Demonstrate your interest in them
Need to know step-by-step sequence	Provide outline and/or one-two-three instructions as you personally "walk them through"
Want others to notice their patient perseverance	Compliment them for their steady follow-through
Avoid risks and changes	Give them personal assurances
Dislike conflict	Act non-aggressively, focus on common interest or needed support
Accommodate others	Allow them to provide service or support for others
Look for calmness and peace	Provide a relaxing, friendly atmosphere
Enjoy teamwork	Provide them with a cooperative group
Want sincere feedback that they're appreciated	Acknowledge their easygoing manner and helpful efforts, when appropriate

Communication Plan with the CONSCIENTIOUS Style

CHARACTERISTICS	SO YOU...
Concerned with aggressive approaches	Approach them in an indirect, nonthreatening way
Think logically	Show your reasoning
Seek data	Give data to them in writing
Need to know the process	Provide explanations and rationale
Utilize caution	Allow them to think, inquire and check before they make decisions
Prefer to do things themselves	When delegating, let them check procedures, and other progress and performance before they make decisions
Want others to notice their accuracy	Compliment them on their thoroughness and correctness when appropriate
Gravitate toward quality control	Let them assess and be involved in the process when possible
Avoid conflict	Tactfully ask for clarification and assistance you may need
Need to be right	Allow them time to find the best or "correct" answer, within available limits
Like to contemplate	Tell them "why" and "how"

Potential Areas for Improvement

Everyone has some possible struggles, limitations or weaknesses. Oftentimes, it's simply an overextension of your strengths which may become a weakness. For example, a High D's directness may be a strength in certain environments, but when overextended they may tend to become bossy.

Check the two most important areas you are committed to improve upon and transfer them to the Summary of Your Style page.

Potential Areas for Improvement:

- You may tend to take constructive criticism personally, possibly losing focus as to how it relates to the task.
- You may be rather indirect in providing instructions, because you don't want to impose your will on others.
- You may be a bit of a grudge-holder toward those who offer criticism.
- You may hesitate to correct or discipline those who report to you, for fear of offending someone.
- You may have difficulty with quick decision making because of your need to consider the "people side" of all issues.
- You may need some coaching in time management; for instance, in setting more ambitious deadlines.
- You may show less emphasis on productivity and more emphasis on the "people side" of a project.

Summary of Sample Report's Style

Communication is a two-way process. Encourage others to complete their own DISCstyles Online Assessment and then share the Summary Sheet with each other. By discussing preferences, needs and wants of the people you work with, socialize with and live with, you can enhance these relationships and turn what might have been a stressful relationship into a more effective one just by understanding and applying the DISCstyles information. WORD SKETCH Adapted Style

DISC is an observable “needs-motivated” instrument based on the idea that emotions and behaviors are neither “good” nor “bad.” Rather, behaviors reveal the needs that motivate that behavior. Therefore, once we can accurately observe one’s actions, it is easier to “read” and anticipate their likely motivators and needs. This allows us to predict what will and will not please them which makes for better relationships and a more harmonious and productive workplace! This chart shows your ADAPTED DISC Graph as a “Word Sketch.” Use it with examples to describe why you do what you do and what’s important to you when it comes to (D)ominance of Problems, (I)nfluence of other People, (S)teadiness of Pace, or (C)ompliance to Procedures and Rules. Share more about the specific needs (now maybe habits) that drive you in each area of FOCUS. Is your DISC point at levels 1 and 2? Then your emotions and needs are the opposite of those whose graph is at Levels 5 and 6 in that area.

DISCstyles eGraphs for Sample Report

Your Adapted Style indicates you tend to use the behavioral traits of the IS style(s) in your selected Work focus. Your Natural Style indicates that you naturally tend to use the behavioral traits of the Isc style(s).

Your Adapted Style is your graph displayed on the left. It is your perception of the behavioral tendencies you think you should use in your selected focus (work, social or family). This graph may change when you change roles or situations. The graph on the right is your Natural Style and indicates the intensity of your instinctive behaviors and motivators. It is often a better indicator of the “real you” and your “knee jerk”, instinctive behaviors. This is how you act when you feel comfortable in your home environment and are not attempting to impress. It is also what shows up in stressful situations. This graph tends to be fairly consistent, even in different environments.

Adapted Style - Graph I

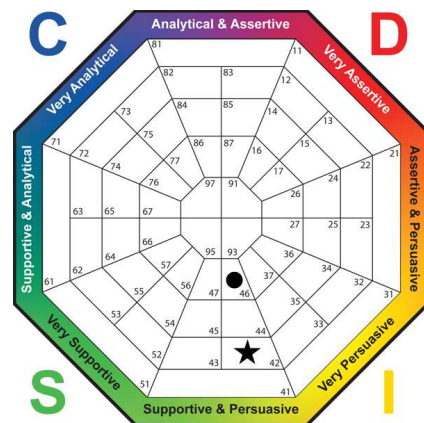

Pattern: IS (2553)

Focus: Work

Natural Style - Graph II

Pattern: Isc (3544)

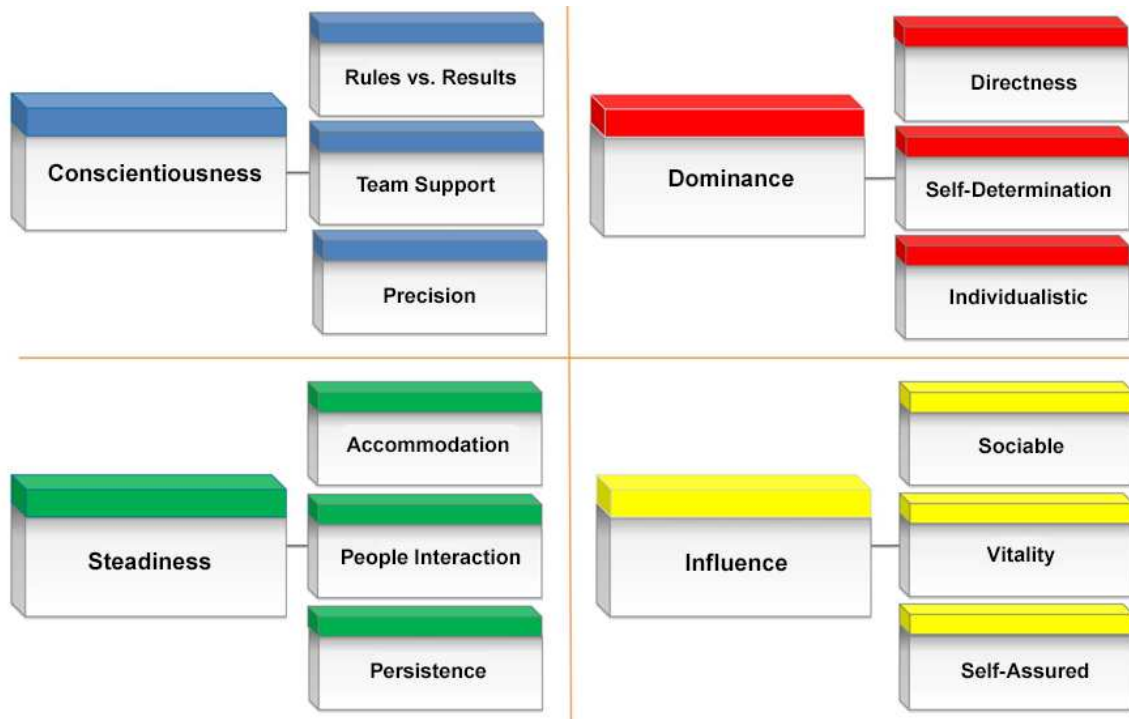

If the two bars are similar, it means that you tend to use your same natural behaviors in that environment. If your Adapted Style is different from your Natural Style, this may cause stress if done over a long period of time. You are then using behaviors that are not as comfortable or natural for you.

The four-digit numbers (under the graphs) represent your segment numbers in DISC order and dictate the adjectives highlighted on the Word Sketch pages.

The higher or lower each D, I, S, C point is on your graphs, the greater or lesser your needs-motivated behavior impacts your results at work and others around you. Once aware, you can adapt your style. Can you change? Of course! You do it every day depending on your situations. However, permanent behavioral change comes only with awareness and practice. Study and practice using the Behavioral Adaptability Charts in this report to gain behavioral flexibility. For further questions or personal coaching, contact your consultant.

The 12 Integrated DISC Style Relationships

For a more complete understanding of a person's overall behavior style, you can view how each of the primary (4) four DISC factors interact to produce (12) twelve integrated behaviors.

When comparing each of the (4) four basic DISC factors with the others, a group of (12) twelve factors of individual behaviors can be identified. Each person will display some of these factors more strongly than the others.

Each of the (12) twelve factors has been assigned a specific descriptor(s) to help you naturally associate the factor to a specific behavior. The ability to identify and measure the relative interaction of the (12) twelve factors represents a dramatic improvement in the use and application of DISC to better understand human workplace behavior.

We can measure the strength of a factor in a person's overall behavioral style by viewing the intensity score. Intensity is a measurement of the relative contribution of a specific factor to a person's observable natural behaviors that are most often displayed in most situations.

The (5) five intensity levels range from Low (absent in most situations) thru High (clearly displayed in most situations). This integrated behavioral view represents an improvement that contributes to the overall understanding of human behavior. Behaviors define how we deliver our thinking into the world.

We recommend you add this powerful new view to your tool kit and use it to assist you in understanding why and how people shape their communications and connections with the other people in their life.

This list of (12) twelve Integrated DISC relationships reveals how the (4) four Primary DISC behaviors combine and work together to create the socialized behaviors others see and experience. The Length of the black bar shows the relative influence of the DISC factors in someone's overall observable behavioral style.

The blue box identifies 68% of all scores in the general population for each integrated behavior. One standard deviation (34%) below the median score (vertical link) and one standard deviation (34%) above the median score (vertical link). Unlike an AVERAGE, the median score will not always be shown with equal space on both sides.

1. The Sociable Behavior (I/D) [High Moderate Intensity]

"How this individual's need for social interaction is impacted by their assertiveness and desire for immediate results." The Sociable behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's preference for cordial social interaction and people connection is influenced by their need for immediate results. Higher intensity scores reflect an emphasis on seeking, building and sustaining personal relationships while Lower intensity scores reflect a much stronger competitive "result now" focus with less effort on accommodation and building relationships.

2. The Self-Assured Behavior (I/C) [Moderate Intensity]

"How this individual's people oriented extroversion is impacted by their need for accuracy and structure." The Self-Assured behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's extroversion and desire for personal connection with others is influenced by their need for structure, detail, and accurate evidence prior to taking action. Higher intensity scores can sometimes lead to overconfidence with a willingness to improvise and to take spontaneous actions vs. thorough planning while Lower intensity scores reflect a cautious and conscientious approach that seeks to take actions that are supported by reliable tactics, trusted data and past successes.

3. The Vitality Behavior (I/S) [Moderate Intensity]

"How this individual's people focused extroversion is impacted by their preferred pace and activity level." The Vitality behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's desire for interpersonal connections is influenced by their degree of urgency, preferred pace and activity level. Higher intensity scores reflect a high energy, freewheeling, confident and engaging style that will likely embrace new ideas and concepts while Lower intensity scores reflect thoughtfulness and care when crafting both words and deeds as one moves steadily toward the identified goal and objective.

4. The Accommodation Behavior (S/D) [Moderate Intensity]

"How this individual's need to operate at a steady pace and innate degree of patience is impacted by their need for immediate results." The accommodation behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's level of patience and activity level are influenced by the strength of their desire to lead, command and direct activities focused on immediate results and solutions. Higher intensity scores reflect a willingness to consider, accommodate and support alternative solutions and ideas while Lower intensity scores reflect a propensity to make difficult decisions, remain firm in supporting and defending them sustained by a strong focus on achieving immediate results and accomplishing assigned goals.

5. The Rules vs. Results Behavior (C/D) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's need for accuracy, precision and guidelines is impacted by their need for immediate results.” The Rules vs. Results behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's need to precisely follow established structural and procedural guidelines, standards and codes is influenced by their need for direct “results now” actions that target immediate accomplishments. Higher intensity scores identify a strong need to pursue objectives with guidance and reliance upon established structure, rules, organizational protocols and policies while Lower intensity scores suggest a more direct, immediate “result now” focus that will not likely be restrained by established protocols, procedures and policies.

6. The Persistence Behavior (S/C) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's need for pace and patience is impacted by their need for accuracy, precision and planning.” The Persistence behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's patience, activity level and team support is influenced by their need for accuracy, precision and structure. Higher intensity scores reflect an emphasis on supporting planned group and team efforts while Lower intensity scores reflect a need to follow established policies and procedures even if it requires running counter to the team's direction that may be advocating alternative or even potentially risky actions.

7. The Precision Behavior (C/S) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's need for accuracy, precision and planning is impacted by their desire for team support and accommodation.” The Precision behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's need for structure, accuracy, order and precision is influenced by their pace, patience and level of team accommodation. Higher intensity scores reflect a desire to operate in a “fail-safe” environment supported by accurate data and through preparation while Lower intensity scores suggest steady paced progress, strong support, consideration and accommodation for the team's overall direction.

8. The Individualistic Behavior (D/C) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's “results now” assertiveness is impacted by their desire to be accurate, analytical and structured.” The Individualistic behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's direct, assertive and “results now focus” is influenced by their need to precisely follow established structural and procedural guidelines while pursuing objectives. Higher intensity scores will not likely be deterred by potential restraints or established policies especially if they are perceived to impede immediate results while Lower intensity scores will favor strong and precise compliance and adherence to established structure, rules, policy and procedures.

9. The Self-Determination Behavior (D/S) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's degree of assertive “results now” focus is impacted by their level of patience.” The Self-Determination behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's direct, assertive and “results now” oriented behaviors are influenced by their degree of patience and preferred pace. Higher intensity scores identify a preference toward a more “now oriented pace” that is keyed toward taking actions that achieve immediate results and goals while Lower intensity scores identify a steadier, less urgent pace that embraces planning and careful consideration of consequences prior to taking action.

10. The People Interaction Behavior (S/I) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's need for a steady pace and exercise of patience is impacted by their desire to connect and engage in social interaction.” The People Interaction behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's degree of patience and preferred activity level are influenced by the strength of their extroversion and a desire to socially interact and accommodate others. Higher intensity scores will display a great deal of care and consideration when crafting the words and deeds that impact others while Lower intensity scores will reflect a freewheeling and confident belief that most if not all interactive social situations can be handled “on the fly.”

11. The Team Support Behavior (C/I) [Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's need for accuracy, precision and following procedure is impacted by their desire for social connection and interaction.” The Team Support behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's desire for accuracy, structure, rules and standards is influenced by the strength of their desire to interact, engage and accommodate other people. Higher intensity scores display reliance upon structure, logic, facts and established data, procedures and protocols while Lower intensity scores display a more cordially social, engaging and accommodating communication style with a less focus on established protocols.

12. The Directness Behavior (D/I) [Low Moderate Intensity]

0.....10.....20.....30.....40.....50.....60.....70.....80.....90.....100

“How this individual's dominance and 'results now focus' is impacted by their desire to interact, connect and relate to others.” The Directness behavior measures HOW the strength of this individual's direct, assertive and results oriented communication style is influenced by their desire to build relationships and connect with others. Higher intensity scores identify a willingness to make and defend tough and even unpopular decisions while Lower intensity scores will identify an inclination to search for a more socially interactive, popular and accommodating solution.

Intensity Scoring Legend – DISC Style intensity is a measure of how you will likely display the specific behavior when interacting and communicating with others in most situations.

- Low Intensity - Low Intensity scores indicate the ABSENCE of this behavior in MOST situations.
- Low Moderate - Low Moderate Intensity scores are only SOMETIMES observable in SOME situations.
- Moderate Intensity - Moderate Intensity scores do not mean “mild.” Moderate means the behavior is flexible and may or may not become observable based upon the requirements of the specific situation.
- High Moderate - High Moderate Intensity scores are frequently observable in many situations.
- High Intensity - High Intensity scores will be clearly observable, displayed more often and seen in most situations.

Behavioral Pattern View

The BPV has eight behavioral zones. Each zone identifies a different combination of behavioral traits. The peripheral descriptors describe how others typically see individuals with your style. Plots on the outer edges of the diamond identify that one factor (DISC) of your style will dominate the other three. As you move towards the center of the diamond two and eventually three traits combine to moderate the intensity of your style descriptors within a specific behavioral zone.

THE SCORING LEGEND

D = Dominance: How you deal with Problems

I = Influence/Extroversion: How you deal with Other People

S = Steadiness/Patience: How you deal with your Activity Level

C = Conscientious/Compliance/Structure: How you deal with the "Organization's Rules" as well as the focus on details, accuracy and precision

PART II Application of DISC Styles

Understanding your own behavioral style is just the first step to enhancing relationships. All the knowledge in the world doesn't mean much if you don't know how to apply it in real life situations. That's what the rest of this report is all about.

To really begin to use the power of behavioral styles, you also need to know how to apply the information to people and situations. Remember, people want to be treated according to their behavioral style, not yours!

THIS APPLICATION SECTION INCLUDES:

- Overview of the Four Basic DISCstyles
- How to Identify Another Person's Behavioral Style
- What is Behavioral Adaptability
- How to Modify Your Style
- Tension Among the Styles
- How to Adapt to the Different Behavioral Styles

This section will help you understand how to be more effective in relationships and situations. Good relationships can get better and challenging relationships may become good.

After reviewing the information, select a relationship in which things have not gone as smoothly as you would like. Make a commitment to at least take the time to gain an understanding of the other person's behavioral style and take a few steps to adapt your behavior to improve the relationship. Here's how to do it:

- 1 Identify the behavioral style of the other person using the How to Identify Another Person's Behavioral Style section. You can read about their style in Overview of the Four Basic DISCstyles. The section on What Is Behavioral Adaptability gives you an in-depth insight into what adaptability is, what it is not, and why it's so important to all your interpersonal relationships.
- 2 Once you know their style and preferences for directness and/or openness, you can use the How to Modify Your Directness and Openness section to adjust these areas when relating to this person. You will be amazed at the difference.
- 3 To further understand the tension that may exist in the relationship, you can refer to the Tension Among the Styles section and complete the Tension Among the Styles Worksheet. Being aware of the differences in preference in pace and priority, and modifying accordingly, can make a big difference in those tension-filled relationships.
- 4 And finally, the last section, How to Adapt to the Different Behavioral Styles, will give you suggestions when dealing with each of the four basic styles.

Overview of the Four Basic DISCstyles

Below is a chart to help you understand some of the characteristics of each of the Four Basic DISC Styles, so you can interact with each style more effectively. Although behavioral style is only a partial description of personality, it is quite useful in describing how a person behaves, and is perceived in personal, social and work situations.

	HIGH DOMINANT STYLE		HIGH INFLUENCING STYLE		HIGH STEADY STYLE		HIGH CONSCIENTIOUS STYLE
PACE	Fast/Decisive		Fast/spontaneous		Slower/Relaxed		Slower/Systematic
PRIORITY	Goal		People		Relationship		Task
SEEKS	Productivity Control		Participation Applause		Acceptance		Accuracy Precision
STRENGTHS	Administration Leadership Pioneering		Persuading Motivating Entertaining		Listening Teamwork Follow-through		Planning Systemizing Orchestration
GROWTH AREAS	Impatient Insensitive to others Poor listener		Inattentive to detail Short attention span Low follow-through		Oversensitive Slows to begin action Lacks global perspective		Perfectionist Critical Unresponsive
FEARS	Being taken advantage of		Loss of social recognition		Sudden changes Instability		Personal criticism of their work efforts
IRRITATIONS	Inefficiency Indecision		Routines Complexity		Insensitivity Impatience		Disorganization Impropriety
UNDER STRESS MAY BECOME	Dictatorial Critical		Sarcastic Superficial		Submissive Indecisive		Withdrawn Headstrong
GAINS SECURITY THROUGH	Control Leadership		Playfulness Others' approval		Friendship Cooperation		Preparation Thoroughness
MEASURES PERSONAL WORTH BY	Impact or results Track records and products		Acknowledgments Applause Compliments		Compatibility with others Depth of contribution		Precision Accuracy Quality of results
WORKPLACE	Efficient Busy Structured		Interacting Busy Personal		Friendly Functional Personal		Formal Functional Structured

How to Identify Another Person's Behavioral Style

How do you quickly and accurately identify each of the four behavioral styles in order to practice adaptability? You do this by focusing on two areas of behavior — DIRECTNESS and OPENNESS. So, to quickly identify the styles of other people ask the questions on the following page.

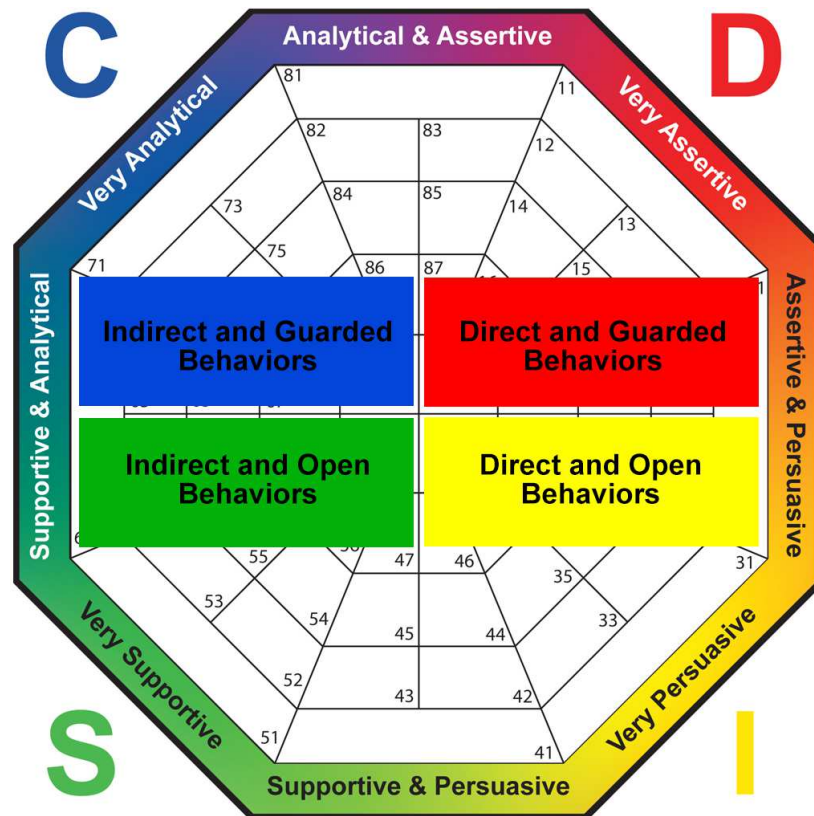

When you combine both scales, you create each of the four different behavioral styles. Individuals who exhibit guarded and direct behaviors are Dominance Styles; direct and open behaviors are Influence Styles; open and indirect behaviors are Steadiness Styles; and indirect and guarded behaviors are Conscientious Styles.

The Whole Picture

Recognizing another person's Behavioral Style - 2 Power Questions:

1. Are they DIRECT or INDIRECT in their communications?
(Directness is the 1st. Predictor of Style. Direct plot on the right, Indirect on the Left).
2. Are they GUARDED or OPEN in their communications?
(Openness is the 2nd. Predictor of Style. Open plot on the Bottom, Guarded on the Top).

When we integrate both the natural tendency to be either DIRECT or INDIRECT with the natural tendency to be either GUARDED or OPEN it forms the foundation and the basis for plotting each of the four different behavioral styles:

D = Individuals who typically exhibit direct & guarded behaviors define the Dominant Styles

I = Individuals who exhibit direct & open behaviors define the Influence/Extroverted Styles.

S = Individuals who exhibit indirect & open behaviors define the Steadiness/Patient Styles.

C = Individuals who exhibit indirect & guarded behaviors define the Conscientious/Compliant Styles.

The behavioral intensity of directness or indirectness and being open or guarded is shown in the quadrant you plot. The plots towards the edge of the diamond reflect MORE INTENSITY and those plotting closer to the center reflect a MORE MODERATE INTENSITY of both characteristics.

What is Behavioral Adaptability?

Adaptability is your willingness and ability to adjust your approach or strategy based on the particular needs of the situation or relationship at a particular time. It's something applied more to yourself (to your patterns, attitudes and habits) than to others.

No one style is naturally more adaptable than another. For any situation, the strategic adjustments that each style needs to make will vary. The decision to employ specific adaptability techniques is made on a case-by-case basis: you can choose to be adaptable with one person, and not so with others. You can choose to be quite adaptable with one person today and less adaptable with that same individual tomorrow. Adaptability concerns the way you manage your own behaviors.

You practice adaptability each time you slow down for a C or S style; or when you move a bit faster for the D or I styles. It occurs when the D or C styles take the time to build the relationship with an S or I style; or when the I or S styles focus on facts or get right to the point with D or C styles. It means adjusting your own behavior to make other people feel more at ease with you and the situation

Adaptability does not mean "imitation" of the other person's style. It does mean adjusting your openness, directness, pace, and priority in the direction of the other person's preference, while maintaining your own identity.

Adaptability is important to all successful relationships. People often adopt a different style in their professional lives than they do in their social and personal lives. We tend to be more adaptable at work with people we know less. We tend to be less adaptable at home and with people we know better.

Adaptability at its extreme could make you appear wishy-washy and two-faced. A person who maintains high adaptability in all situations may not be able to avoid stress and inefficiency. There is also the danger of developing tension from the stress of behaving in a "foreign" style. Usually, this is temporary and may be worth it if you gain rapport with others. At the other end of the continuum, no adaptability would cause others to view someone as rigid and uncompromising because they insist on behaving according to their own natural pace and priority.

Effectively adaptable people meet other people's needs and their own. Through practice, they are able to achieve a balance: strategically managing their adaptability by recognizing when a modest compromise is appropriate, or, when the nature of the situation calls for them to totally adapt to the other person's behavioral style, they do so. Adaptable people know how to negotiate relationships in a way that allows everyone to win. They are tactful, reasonable, understanding, and non-judgmental.

Your adaptability level influences how others judge their relationship with you. Raise your adaptability level and trust and credibility go up; lower your adaptability level and trust and credibility go down. Adaptability enables you to interact more productively with difficult people and helps you to avoid or manage tense situations. With adaptability you can treat other people the way THEY want to be treated.

How to Modify Your Directness and Openness

In some interpersonal situations, you will only be able to identify another person's directness or openness, but not both. In these situations, you need to know how to practice adaptability, one behavioral dimension at a time. With that in mind, let's look at what you can do to modify YOUR level of Directness or Openness before looking at specific guidelines for being more adaptable with each of the four styles.

Directness

TO INCREASE:

- Speak, move and make decisions at a faster pace
- Initiate conversation and decisions
- Give recommendations
- Use direct statements rather than roundabout questions
- Use a strong, confident voice
- Challenge and tactfully disagree, when appropriate
- Face conflict openly, but don't clash with the person
- Increase your eye contact

TO DECREASE:

- Talk, walk and make decisions more slowly
- Seek and acknowledge others' opinions
- Share decision-making
- Be more mellow
- Do not interrupt
- When talking, provide pauses to give others a chance to speak
- Refrain from criticizing, challenging or acting pushy
- When disagreeing, choose words carefully

Openness

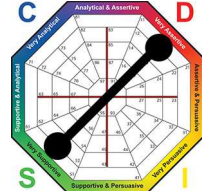

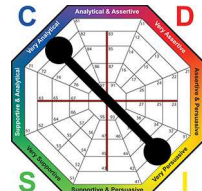

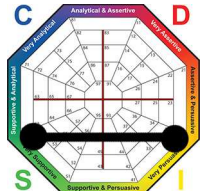

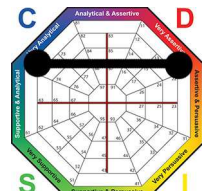

TO INCREASE:

- Share feelings; show more emotion
- Respond to the expression of others' feelings
- Pay personal compliments
- Take time to develop the relationship
- Use friendly language
- Communicate more; loosen up and stand closer
- Be willing to digress from the agenda

TO DECREASE:

- Get right to the task – the bottom line
- Maintain more of a logical, factual orientation
- Keep to the agenda
- Do not waste the other person's time
- Do not initiate physical contact
- Downplay your enthusiasm and body movement
- Use businesslike language

Tension Among the Styles

Potential Tensions/Disconnects	Plot Points Example
Double Tensions of Patience vs. Urgency AND People versus Task Pattern 1: The High S's preferred Patient & Slower Pace with a Primary Focus on People rather than on results and task can conflict with the High D's Sense of Urgency and a focus on Tasks and Results and Now.	 High S + High D (Lower Left vs. Upper Right Quadrant)
Double Tensions of Patience vs. Urgency AND People versus Task Pattern 2: The High C's lack of Urgency with a Primary Focus on Tasks/Results can conflict with the High I's higher Urgency with a Primary Focus on People vs. Results and Tasks.	 High C + High I (Upper Left vs. Lower Right Quadrant)
Patience vs. Urgency Tensions: The High S's innate patience can conflict with the High I's Sense of Urgency.	 High S + High I (Lower Left vs. Lower Right Quadrant).
Patience vs. Urgency Tensions: The High C's focus on exercising patience to assure accuracy and avoid errors can conflict with the High D's focus on results, do it NOW solutions, and immediate action.	 High C + High D (Upper Left vs. Upper Right Quadrant)

Potential Tensions/Disconnects	Plot Points Example
People versus Tasks Tensions: The High D's focus on Results, Tasks, and Action can conflict with the High I's Focus on People, Feelings and Sociable Correctness.	High D + High I (Upper Right vs. Lower Right Quadrant)
People versus Tasks Tensions: The High C's focus on Data, Analysis, Accuracy, and Precision can conflict with the High S's Focus on People, Teamwork, Personal Connection and a Feeling of Family.	High C + High S (Upper Left vs. Lower Left Quadrant)

Tension Among the Styles WORKSHEET

Everybody has a few tension-filled relationships. You can have the highest regard and/or loving feelings toward the person. It seems no matter what you do, your interactions are usually stressful. If this is behavior related, applying The Platinum Rule® - Treat others the way THEY want to be treated – may be helpful. Complete this worksheet to gain insights on how to improve the relationship. If you feel comfortable, you may discuss with the other person things you can do to ease the tension.

First, refer to the section on How to Identify Another Person's Style and determine their primary behavioral style. Then refer to the Tension Model to identify their pace and priority preferences. Next, see which preferences are different than yours and note the strategy you will take to modify your behavior. If both preferences are the same as yours, then determine where you will allow their needs to be placed above yours. For example, if you are a High I with fast-pace and people-oriented preferences and the other person is as well, you might let them have the center stage in times when it is not as important for you. A little give and take will go a long way.

How to Adapt to the DOMINANT Style

They are time-sensitive; so do not waste their time. Be organized and get to the point. Give them relevant information and options, with probabilities of success. Give them written details to read at their leisure — all on a single page, if possible. Appeal to their sense of accomplishment. Stroke their egos by supporting their ideas and acknowledge their power and prestige. Let them be in charge. If you disagree, argue facts, not feelings. In groups, allow them to have their say, as they will not take a back seat to others. In general, be efficient and competent.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- More realistically gauge risks
- Exercise more caution and deliberation before making decisions
- Follow pertinent rules, regulations, and expectations
- Recognize and solicit others' contributions
- Tell others the reasons for decisions
- Cultivate more attention/responsiveness to emotions

SALES AND SERVICE...

- Plan to be prepared, organized, fast-paced, and always to the point
- Meet them in a professional and businesslike manner
- Learn and study their goals and objectives — what they want to accomplish, how they currently are motivated to do things, and what they would like to change
- Suggest solutions with clearly defined and agreed upon consequences as well as rewards that relate specifically to their goals
- Get to the point
- Provide options and let them make the decision, when possible

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Let them know that you don't intend to waste their time
- Convey openness and acceptance of them
- Listen to their suggestions
- Summarize their achievements and accomplishments
- Give them your time and undivided attention
- Appreciate and acknowledge them when possible

IN LEARNING SETTINGS...

- Likes to learn quickly; may be frustrated with a slower pace
- Has own internal motivation-clock, learns for their own reasons, not for anyone else's reasons
- May like to structure their own learning design
- Does okay with independent self-study
- Defines own goals
- May have a short attention span

How to Adapt to the INFLUENCING Style

They thrive on personal recognition, so pour it on sincerely. Support their ideas, goals, opinions, and dreams. Try not to argue with their pie-in-the-sky visions; get excited about them. They are social-butterflies, so be ready to flutter around with them. A strong presence, stimulating and entertaining conversation, jokes, and liveliness will win them over. They are people-oriented, so give them time to socialize. Avoid rushing into tasks. In general, be interested in them.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- Prioritize and organize
- See tasks through to completion
- View people and tasks more objectively
- Avoid overuse of giving and taking advice
- Write things down

SALES AND SERVICE...

- Show that you're interested in them, let them talk, and allow your animation and enthusiasm to emerge
- Take the initiative by introducing yourself in a friendly and informal manner and be open to new topics that seem to interest them
- Support their dreams and goals
- Illustrate your ideas with stories and emotional descriptions that they can relate to their goals or interests
- Clearly summarize details and direct these toward mutually agreeable objectives and action steps
- Provide incentives to encourage quicker decisions
- Give them testimonials

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Focus on a positive, upbeat, warm approach
- Listen to their personal feelings and experiences
- Respond openly and congenially
- Avoid negative or messy problem discussions
- Make suggestions that allow them to look good
- Don't require much follow-up, detail or long-term commitments
- Give them your attention, time and presence

IN LEARNING SETTINGS...

- Likes learning in groups
- Interacts frequently with others
- Responds to extrinsic motivation, praise, and encouragement
- Needs structure from the facilitator; may lose track of time
- Needs "what to do" and "when to do it"
- May exceed deadlines if left on their own and learning may be completed late

How to Adapt to the STEADY Style

They are relationship-oriented and want warm and fuzzy relationships, so take things slow, earn their trust, support their feelings, and show sincere interest. Talk in terms of feelings, not facts. The S Styles do not want to ruffle feathers. They want to be assured that everyone will approve of them and their decisions. Give them time to solicit co-workers' opinions. Never back a Steady Style into a corner. It is far more effective to apply warmth to get this chicken out of its egg than to crack the shell with a hammer. In general, be non-threatening and sincere.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- Utilize shortcuts and discard unnecessary steps
- Track their growth
- Avoid doing things the same way
- Realize there is more than one approach to tasks
- Become more open to some risks and changes
- Feel sincerely appreciated
- Speak up and voice their thoughts and feelings

SALES AND SERVICE...

- Get to know them more personally and approach them in a non-threatening, pleasant, and friendly, but professional way
- Develop trust, friendship, and credibility at a relatively slow pace
- Ask them to identify their own emotional needs as well as their task or business expectations
- Get them involved by focusing on the human element... that is, how something affects them and their relationships with others
- Avoid rushing them and give them personal, concrete assurances, when appropriate
- Communicate with them in a consistent manner on a regular basis

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Focus on a slower-paced, steady approach
- Avoid arguments and conflict
- Respond sensitively and sensibly
- Privately acknowledge them with specific, believable compliments
- Allow them to follow through on concrete tasks
- Show them step-by-step procedures
- Behave pleasantly and optimistically
- Give them stability and minimum of change

IN LEARNING SETTINGS...

- Accepts a balance between individual and group work
- Shows patience with detailed or technical processes
- Likes journaling and follow-through
- Prefers explicit instructions
- Wants to know the performance outcomes and expectations
- May need help in prioritizing tasks if a long assignment; may take criticism personally

How to Adapt to the CONSCIENTIOUS Style

Be sensitive to their schedules. They need details, so give them data. When working with them, do not expect to become their friend. Support their organized to problem solving. Be systematic, logical, well prepared and exact. Give them time to make decisions and work independently. In groups, do not expect them to be leaders or outspoken contributors, but do rely on them to conduct research, crunch numbers, and perform detailed footwork for the group. When appropriate, set guidelines and deadlines. In general, be thorough, well prepared, detailed and business-like.

AT WORK, HELP THEM TO...

- Share their knowledge and expertise with others
- Stand up for themselves with the people they prefer to avoid
- Shoot for realistic deadlines and parameters
- View people and tasks less seriously and critically
- Balance their lives with both interaction and tasks
- Keep on course with tasks, less checking
- Maintain high expectations for high priority items, not everything

SALES AND SERVICE...

- Prepare so that you can answer as many of their questions as soon as possible
- Greet them cordially, but proceed quickly to the task; don't start with personal or social talk
- Hone your skills in practicality and logic
- Ask questions that reveal a clear direction and that fit into the overall scheme of things
- Document how and why something applies
- Give them time to think; avoid pushing them into a hasty decision
- Tell them both the pros and cons and the complete story
- Follow through and deliver what you promise

IN SOCIAL SETTINGS...

- Use a logical approach
- Listen to their concerns, reasoning, and suggestions
- Respond formally and politely
- Negative discussions are OK, so long as they aren't personally directed
- Privately acknowledge them about their thinking
- Focus on how pleased you are with their procedures
- Solicit their insights and suggestions
- Show them by what you do, not what you say

IN LEARNING SETTINGS...

- Prefers individual work over group interaction
- Accepts more impersonal training, such as remote or on-line
- Has high expectations of their own performance
- Will structure their own activities only with explicit goals and outcomes established
- Emphasizes details, deep thinking, and theoretical bases for the learning
- May get overly bogged down in details, especially if the learning climate is pressured

Building and Maintaining Rapport/Productivity

BUILDING AND MAINTAINING RAPPORT AND PRODUCTIVITY THROUGHOUT THE MANAGEMENT/LEADERSHIP PROCESS

The Platinum Rule (Do Unto Others as They Would Have You Do Unto Them) can have a positive effect on almost every aspect of managing/leading others. With each of the four DISC behavioral types, for example, there's a different way to communicate and delegate tasks to them; compliment and correct them; and motivate and counsel them.

Learning these methods can quickly make you a more sensitive, effective leader of people. Sensitivity and tact are constantly demanded of leaders. If, as someone once said, tact is the radar of the mind, The Platinum Rule can be a valuable tune-up of your antenna.

By now, you know your primary DISC behavioral style along with growth opportunities to help you deal better with tasks and people. Keep those thoughts in mind.

Meanwhile, recognize that your power to influence employees springs from two sources. First, there's "position power." That's just what it sounds like, you're the CEO, the department head, the regional manager, and a certain amount of power comes with that title.

But ask any CEO what happens when he tries to get a brand of ketchup changed in the employee cafeteria. Ask the department head what happens when she decides to cut back on overtime. Ask the regional manager what happens when he asks all the store managers to upgrade the signs in their windows. Sometimes the bosses get their way and sometimes they don't.

So even if you have a title, you can't rely on position power alone to get you what you want. You also need "personal power." In fact, it's now generally believed that a leader can't really lead until he or she is genuinely accepted by those who are to be led.

If the CEO, department head, or regional manager gets the cooperation he or she asks for, it's not just because that person has a title. It's because he or she has also gained the confidence and trust of the average employee. It's because he or she has attained personal power.

So position power comes from being anointed by the hierarchy. But personal power comes from earning it, from developing it. Position power is a starting point for influencing people. But it's personal power that turns mere compliance into real cooperation.

The Platinum Rule provides that extra ingredient that leaders and managers can use in endless ways for their firm and for themselves. Being adaptable can help supervisors, managers and leaders build bridges to their employees and make them feel valued. By learning how best to respond to their interests and concerns, their strengths and weaknesses, you can get the most from your people as well as leave them more personally satisfied.

Developing Your People

Developing C's	Developing D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Point out the most important things to remember first. Demonstrate in an efficient, logical manner, stressing the purpose of each step. Proceed slowly, stopping at key places to check for their understanding. Ask for possible input, especially regarding potential refinements. Build up to the big picture. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Focus on the big picture. Cover basic steps/ high points quickly. Show them the simplest, fastest route to get them to their stated destination. Tell them what is to be done by when. Help them find shortcuts Connect concept with their highest value.
Developing S's	Developing I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Use one-on-one, hands-on instruction. Start at the beginning & end at the end. Let them observe others before trying. Provide a step-by-step list of procedures or a working timetable/ schedule. Allow plenty of repetition for their actions to become second nature and more routine. Use a pleasant and patient approach in small group settings. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Release information in chunks. Skip details and boring material. Get them involved kinesthetically. Let them show you what they are learning. Be slow to criticize and quick to praise. Let them teach concept to others.

Adapt Your Communication Style

Communicating with C's	Communicating with D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Be well organized and clear in your communications. • They search for logical conclusions. • Ask your questions in a more discreet, non-judgmental manner to elicit the points, objectives, or assurances C's want: "Lenny, I'm not trying to pressure you, but are you not interested in the auditor's position, or in any position?" 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Listen to their suggestions, their course of action and the results they are considering. • Find areas where you already agree. • Work backwards toward gaining agreement on the results you both want—and are willing to either mutually or independently allow the other to achieve: "Sarah, this format will give you the freedom to develop your branch your way and still allow Vern and Ellen to structure theirs another way... without sacrificing time or morale."
Communicating with S's	Communicating with I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Be ready to do more talking than listening; they don't feel comfortable when the limelight is focused on them. • Clarify any key agenda items with them. • Stay organized and move forward steadily (but slowly) as you check to make sure they understand and accept what is being said: "Did you want me to stick around the office at a particular time each day in case you need to telephone me for emergency questions on this account, or do you want me to call you?" 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Listen to their personal feelings and experiences. • Their style requires open and responsive interaction with others, preferably in a manner of congenial and unhurried conversation (like that between long-time friends): "Just between you and me, Chris, I feel very uneasy about Jill and Howard handling this account by themselves."

Helping People Reach Decisions

Helping C's Decide	Helping D's Decide
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Confirm they are open to discussing the problem or decision. • If they aren't ready, either set a definite time that's better for both of you or explore their concern in even pursuing this subject. • Give them time and space to think clearly. • When the situation is being explored, review your impression of the process: "My understanding is you'd like to think it over and figure out what time commitment you'd be able to make to the group. When may I call you about your decision?" 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • D's tend to make autonomous, no-nonsense decisions. • If the decision will help them meet their goals, they go for it; if not, they say no. • One of the few times they put off reaching a conclusion is when it takes too much time/effort doing the homework to determine the best alternative. • Prevent this procrastination by simply providing a brief analysis for each option.
Helping S's Decide	Helping I's Decide
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Deal with only one subject or situation at a time, one step at a time. • Before moving on to other items, make sure they are ready, willing, and able to do so. • Remain calm and relaxed. • Encourage them to share their suggestions as to how the decision might be made in a way that is likely to add even more stability to the current conditions: "Would you mind writing down a schedule of your office's activities so I can write my proposal without missing anything?" 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • They want to avoid discussions of complex, negative-sounding, messy problems. • Frame suggestions in a positive light. • They are open to your suggestions—as long as they allow them to look and feel good—and not require a lot of difficult, follow-up, detail work or long-term commitments. "You know just about everybody, George. Since we need to get $350 in pledges by the end of February, why not go ahead and wrap up all your calls by Friday? Then you can relax a lot more next week."

Motivating Your People

Motivating C's	Motivating D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Appeal to their need for accuracy and logic. • Keep your approach clear, clean and procedural. • Better yet, provide illustration and documentation. • Avoid exaggeration and vagueness. • Show them how this is the best available current option. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lead with the big picture. • Provide them with options and clearly describe the probabilities of success in achieving goals. • Allow them the opportunity to make choices. • Set boundaries, but let them take charge.
Motivating S's	Motivating I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Show how their work benefits others. • Show how the outcome will provide security for their family. • Connect their individual work to the benefit of the whole team. • Get them to see how their follow-through links to a greater good. • Show how it can strengthen their relationships with others. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provide "special" incentives to inspire them to go the whole nine yards. • Show them how they can look good in the eyes of others. • Create short-term contests that don't require long-term commitment. • Reward them in front of others. • Let them speak about their achievements.

Complimenting Your People

Complimenting C's	Complimenting D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mention their efficiency, thought processes, organization, persistence and accuracy. • Don't mix personal and professional comments unless you know them very well. • One C told us: "Compliments don't mean much to me. But I do like genuine, heartfelt appreciation once in awhile." • Keep praise simple and concise. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mention their achievements, upward mobility and leadership potential. • Omit personal comments and focus on their track record: "Jones, you've exceeded our company goals every month for the past year and have put in more hours than anybody but the top officials here. The CEO has his eye on you for an upcoming VP slot."
Complimenting S's	Complimenting I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mention their teamwork and dependability. • Remark about how others regard them, how well they get along with co-workers, and how important their relationship-building efforts have been to the company. • Effusiveness can arouse their suspicions, so stick to praising what they've done rather than personal attribute. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Pay direct personal compliments to them when legitimately deserved. • Mention their charm, friendliness, creative ideas, persuasiveness, and/or appearance (or better yet, all of the above). • They willingly accept "general praise": "We are so lucky to have you with us, Dee. You're a real gem."

Counseling Your People

Counseling C's	Counseling D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Draw them out by asking, "How would you...?" questions about problems. • They express thoughts indirectly, so persist in your attempts to get them to talk. • They need to plan for change so they can identify and bring under control any key considerations that have to be addressed. • When possible, allow them to investigate possible repercussions, especially at the beginning stages. That way they'll become more comfortable with possible changes. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stick to the facts. • Draw them out by talking about the desired results; then discuss their concerns. • Focus on tasks more than feelings. • Ask them how they would solve problems: "Anne, we've heard comments that need to be addressed. It seems some of your employees don't feel appreciated for the extra hours they've been putting in for you. They've worked 14-hour days to beat your deadline. How do you think we can bolster their morale?"
Counseling S's	Counseling I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Understand the emotional side of their situation by drawing them out through questioning and listening • They are disrupted by change and the unknown. • Reduce their fears by showing how specific changes will benefit them and others: "Barbara, moving to Dallas will be an adjustment for all of us at first, but 80% of our staff has agreed to go. The company will move you and your family, sell your house, and give you a 10% bonus for loyal service." 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Give them ample opportunity to talk about whatever may be bothering them. • Pay attention to both facts and feelings, but put your primary emphasis on their feelings. • Involve them by asking how they could solve a challenge or problem. • Sometimes, just airing their feelings and thoughts relieves tension for I's. • Talking allows them to get something off their chests and can even become an end in itself, since their energy is largely influenced by the quality of their relationships.

Correcting Your People

Correcting C's	Correcting D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Show them how to get a job done and they'll master and modify it to suit their needs. • Specify the exact behavior that is indicated and how you would like to see it changed. • Mutually agree on checkpoints and timeframes. • Allow them to save face, as they fear being wrong. "Nelson, your work here is typically done neatly and on time. Now that we're switching to computers, you'll be able to turn out the same quality of work faster. I'd like you to take this computer class..." 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Describe what results are desired. • Show the gap between actual and desired. • Clearly suggest the needed improvement and establish a time to get back to you: "We need to streamline communication so that one hand knows what the other is doing. Last month, we had two separate divisions calling on the same CEO for corporate donations. I want you to work up a plan to keep everybody informed of who's working on what so we don't duplicate our efforts. Get back to me by the end of the week."
Correcting S's	Correcting I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Reassure them that you only want to correct a specific behavior, not them personally • They tend to take things personally, so remove the "something is wrong with you barrier" as quickly as possible • Point out in a non-threatening way what they're already doing right while also emphasizing what needs changing: "Norma, I admire your persistence, but we have to add more details to the proposal before we send it out. For example..." 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • They avoid facing problems and if pressure persists, may walk away from the problem. • Sometimes stress manifests itself in animated panic. "I can't talk now, Hal. It's really hit the fan this time!" • Let them specifically know the challenge and define the behaviors to solve the problem. • Confirm the mutually agreeable action plan (in writing) to prevent future problems. • Use positive, optimistic questions and phrases: "How'd you like to increase your sales to your normal range and beyond?"

Delegating to Your People

Delegating to C's	Delegating to D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Take time to answer their most critical questions about structure and/or guidance they require in a specific situation. The more they understand the details, the more likely they will be to complete the task properly. • Be sure to establish deadlines. • "Angela, the court date on the Mortimer case has been moved up to Monday, so we have to respond by speeding things up a bit. It will proceed almost as efficiently as if you researched everything by yourself if we enlist two associates to help you work, under your direction, on tasks you delegate to them and then review. Before getting started, do you have any preferences on the who's or how to's of this process that you think are essential to check with me at this time?" 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Give them the bottom line and then let them do their thing. • So that they can be more efficient, give them parameters, guidelines, and deadlines. • "We need to get that mall built a month sooner or we'll lose our shirts. Fourteen tenants are threatening to bail out of their contracts if we don't open in time for the holidays. Don't spend more than another $30,000, keep everything legal and out of the newspapers, and get back to me by Monday morning."
Delegating to S's	Delegating to I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • S's may be reluctant to ask others to do their own share of the work, so make a personal appeal to their loyalty and sense of sportsmanship. • "Al, you're an example for this company of genuine cooperative spirit. Your staff wants to please you, so by giving everyone in your department just 10 of those names to call, you can all reach the goal together by noon tomorrow. Otherwise, you'll probably have a lot more difficulty reaching all those people by the target date." Give them the task, state the deadlines that need to be met, and explain why it's important to do it that way. "I'll need 500 copies of these summaries typed and collated by 5 p.m. today. Mr. Jeffries is getting back from New York two days early and he wants them by tomorrow morning." 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Receive clear agreements; set up check points/times to avoid long stretches with no progress reports. • I's are often concept people who come up with plenty of ideas, but not necessarily the means of carrying them out, so steer them toward ways of assuring the implementation of those ideas. • "Olivia, this proposal for the King Company looks good so far, but how about including more direct benefits for each employee. Marian has surveys filled out by each employee. Get together with her, bounce some ideas around, and then include more essential information about the eight or so key people in your proposal. Add some extra plus points on the others...12 pages in all. In this manner, you should do the job very well. And, Olivia, thanks for making the extra effort on this project. It's really important to all of us."

Acknowledging Your People

Acknowledging C's	Acknowledging D's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Focus on your realization of how difficult it can be for them to attempt to meet the high personal standards they set for themselves. • Cite specific and appropriate examples which prove this point. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • When it's appropriate to reward or reinforce their behavior, focus on how pleased you are with their results. • Mention how glad you are to be a part of the process working with them to make things better for both of you through cooperation.
Acknowledging S's	Acknowledging I's
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Focus on how you sincerely appreciate their willingness to make things good for everyone • Approach matters in a systematic, low-keyed, and understanding manner, and reinforce the importance of them sharing their ideas. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Focus on how glad you are they have succeeded in finding a pleasant solution to their concern or objective. • Show you appreciate them for their openness and willingness to respond to you in a way that allows everyone to end up feeling good about the results.

Adapting Your Leadership Style

When You are the C	When You are the D
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Modify criticism (whether spoken or unspoken) of others' work. • Check less often, or only check the critical things (as opposed to everything), allowing the flow of the process to continue. • Ease up on controlling emotions; engage in more water cooler interaction. • Accept the fact that you can have high standards without expecting perfection. • Occasionally confront a colleague (or boss) with whom you disagree, instead of avoiding or ignoring them (and doing what you want to do, anyway). • Tone down the tendency to OVER-prepare. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Allow others to do things without excessive or untimely interference. • Participate in the group without expecting always to be in command. • Modify your tendency to give orders. • Enlist others' input and support through participative, collaborative actions. • Praise and give credit for jobs well done. • Let colleagues and employees know that you realize it's only natural that you and others will make mistakes. • When delegating, give some authority along with the responsibility.
When You are the S	When You are the I
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stretch by taking on a bit more (or different) duties beyond your comfort level. • Increase verbalization of your thoughts and feelings. • Speed up your actions by getting into some projects more quickly. • Desensitize yourselves somewhat, so that you aren't negatively affected by your colleagues' feelings to the point of affecting your own performance. • Learn to adapt more quickly to either changes or refinements of existing practices. • Bolster your assertiveness techniques. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Improve your follow-through efforts. • Monitor socializing to keep it in balance with other aspects of business and life. • Write things down and work from a list, so you'll know what to do and when to do it. • Prioritize activities and focus on tasks in their order of importance. • Become more organized and orderly in the way you do things. • Get the less appealing tasks of the day over with early in the day. • Pay attention to your time management. • Check to make sure you're on course with known tasks or goals.

Adapting Your Leadership Style

When they are C's, Help Them...	When they are D's, Help Them...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Share their knowledge and expertise. • Stand up for themselves with the people they prefer to avoid. • Shoot for realistic deadlines. • View people and tasks less seriously and critically. • Balance their lives with both interaction and tasks. • Keep on course with tasks, with less checking. • Maintain high expectations for high priority items, not necessarily everything. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • More realistically gauge risks. • Exercise more caution and deliberation before making decisions and coming to conclusions. • Follow pertinent rules, regulations and expectations • Recognize and solicit others' contributions, both as individuals and within a group. • Tell others the reasons for decisions. • Cultivate more attention and responsiveness to emotions.
When they are S's, Help Them...	When they are I's, Help Them...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Utilize shortcuts; discard unnecessary steps. • Track their growth. • Avoid doing things the same way. • Focus on the goal without attending to other thoughts or feelings. • Realize tasks have more than one approach. • Become more open to risks and changes. • Feel sincerely appreciated. • Speak up; voice their thoughts and feelings. • Modify the tendency to do what others tell them. • Get and accept credit and praise, when appropriate. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Prioritize and organize. • See tasks through to completion. • View people and tasks more objectively. • Avoid overuse of giving and taking advice (which can result in lack of focus on tasks). • Write things down. • Do the unpleasant, as well as the fun things. • Focus on what's important now. • Avoid procrastination and/or hoping others will do things for them. • Practice and perfect, when appropriate.

Taking Ownership of Your Destiny

Imagine what would have happened if you had successfully applied these principles and practices ten years ago... or even five years ago? Well, hundreds of thousands of people like you have already used these principles and experienced dramatic improvements in all their professional and personal relationships; more satisfaction in their dealings with customers and co-workers (family and friends, also!), and greater awareness of their own strengths and weaknesses. Many people report that they no longer feel like “just a boss”; they feel, behave and are treated like a trusted advisor. They have an increased ability to help people find solutions to their problems and are more adept at helping others grow and succeed.

For you to also share in the pleasure from experiencing these benefits, we encourage you to get started this very minute. First, think about the relationships you want to improve within the next year... the next month... the next week... even by the end of today! Develop a plan to meet those goals using The Platinum Rule and the other principles that make up the DISC Leadership Strategies.

Accept the Challenge

This first step requires your personal commitment to this challenge and your belief in these principles and putting them to work for you. Of course, any adapting your communication style takes practice, and you cannot realistically expect to put all of these ideas into effect immediately. However, the minute you start to manage people the way they want and need to be managed, you’ll start to see immediate improvements.

Commit to Growth

“Change is inevitable... growth is optional.” We love that saying because it’s true. Right now, you have the option to take this moment and make a life-changing decision. You may decide to keep learning about yourself, your strengths and weaknesses, how you make decisions, how you come across to other people, etc... You may decide to learn more about DISC styles and apply your new knowledge in other relationships beyond management; relationships with your peers, colleagues, children, spouse and/or family.

Here’s wishing you continued success!

So Now What?

This report is filled with information about your style and each of the four primary behavioral styles. So now you have an understanding and an awareness of the four different behavioral styles.

There are many suggestions in the application section of this report for you to apply this behavioral style information. Take the next step and DO the exercises if you skipped over them.

Don't put this report on a shelf or in a file. Your style is just not as important as having the opportunity to use this information to open up a meaningful dialogue with others to improve all your relationships. Use this report as a reference tool. There is a lot of information in it and it is not meant to be digested in just one reading.

Have fun with making a few minor changes in your behavior and experience the results. You might be surprised! Remember The Platinum Rule®: "Treat others the way THEY want to be treated." You will have much more success in all your relationships!
