WAI Board Welcomes Members at WAI2022 in Nashville

The 2022 WAI membership meeting yesterday was officially opened by WAI Board Chair Linda Markham who highlighted the enthusiasm and energy of members gathering in person again since WAI2020 in Orlando. She introduced WAI CEO Allison McKay who noted this week's conference will have record attendance in the organization's history, dozens of education sessions, inspiring keynote speakers, an array of professional development seminars and workshops, and a total of $468,080 scholarship awards. WAI membership is now at 15,000 members with more than 800 international members from 90 countries.

Allison also shared internal WAI milestones with new technology coming to the organization's membership database and website, new staff members Stephanie Kenyon, chief growth officer, and Patt Poinsett, director of operations and finance. A new internship program has been launched with details on opportunities on WAI's Jobs Connect, and new WAI staff positions will also be announced.

Board Secretary Michaela Lucas announced the board election results with Linda Markham, Rhonda Larance, and Shannon Weidenkamp re-elected for three-year terms, and Kathy Yodice was voted in for a three-year board member term.

Congratulations to the six Blackburn Northwest Flight Scholarships recipients who each received during the meeting a check for $11,000 for flight training and WAI2022 conference attendance. A previous Blackburn scholarship winner, Brittany Phillips, presented. (l to r) Shyla Williams, Bella Capuano, Olivia Rimmer, Brittany Phillips, Ashley R. Meyer, Anna Leitz, Jessica Whitwell.

New WAI Membership Rates Effective June 1, 2022

Simplifying categories and encouraging Junior Members 18 years old and younger with free membership

During yesterday's WAI Annual Membership Meeting, new membership levels were announced effective June 1, 2022. Corporate Membership to WAI will be $500 per year and include up to 5 individual memberships from the same company.

Other changes coming to WAI membership this year, as of June 1 include:

- FREE membership for Junior Members (members 18 years old and younger)
- Embracing the "INTERNATIONAL" in the WAI name, the small upcharge for members outside of the United States will be eliminated. As of June 1, dues for all Individual members regardless of location will be $44/year ($49/year without auto-renewal).
- Family members residing at the same mailing address may be added to an Individual membership for $15/year ($20/year without auto-renewal).

- Dues for students who are enrolled full-time in college, university, or other vocational program (including full-time enrollment in Part 141 flight schools) will be $24/year ($29/year without auto-renewal).
- Lifetime membership may be purchased by any member for $1,500 (regardless of the member's age)
- A spouse may also add on a Lifetime membership for $300.
- Any member may request digital-only communication at any time; however, there is no discount for this option.

"We believe these changes will simplify our membership levels, bring an increased level of service and value to our Junior Members and those just getting started, and will help expand membership benefits across the globe," says Molly Martin, director of member engagement.

More than 170 smiling exhibitors were ready to receive record crowds in the Ryman Exhibit Hall on Day 1 of the 2022 International Women in Aviation Conference

The official exhibit hall ribbon cutting ceremony yesterday was officiated by the WAI founding board members as well as the current board. Left to Right: Allison McKay, WAI CEO; Linda Markham, board chair; Deborah Baugh, board treasurer. The exhibit hall is open today 10:30 a.m.–5 p.m. closed during lunch noon–1:30 p.m.

Safety First

For Today's Luncheon Speaker, NTSB Chair Jennifer Homendy

National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) Chair Jennifer Homendy's path to her current position was through a maze of hazards, literally. From 2004 to 2018, before her original appointment to the NTSB, she served as the Democratic staff director of the Subcommittee on Railroads, Pipelines, and Hazardous Materials, which is under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the United States House of Representatives. After her confirmation to chair last August, Chair Homendy has had the opportunity to be on scene at a myriad of accidents (not all aviation-related). She's an unwavering defender of transportation safety, having had direct impact on regulation and structural/functional refinements of pipelines and hazardous material transportation across the U.S.

The Daily editors had a chance to ask Chair Homendy a few brief questions ahead of her visit to WAI2022 in Nashville.

1. You're following in the footsteps of a few fine men and women at the NTSB.

What is the one quality you feel has helped the most in your career rise to this top-level executive position in government?

"Don't be afraid to go for it! It can be uncomfortable to take on new challenges. All too often, that fear can paralyze us and prevent us from rising to the occasion, taking on new challenges, and growing, personally and professionally. I like to say, get comfortable with being uncomfortable."

2. We are so thrilled your daughter Lexi can join you at the conference. Is there a particular reason why she wants to come explore our WAI conference?

"Lexi loves all things aerospace—her future is sky-high, if you'll excuse the pun! Her dream job is to work on scientific experiments on the International Space Station. She knows what she wants and I'm so proud of her ambition. She also hopes to inspire other girls in aviation to follow their passions."

3. You seem really happy to have Lexi along at the conference today. Is it special to have her with you at work?

"My job takes me away from home a lot, so I'm always looking for creative ways to spend more time with my daughter while inspiring her to follow her dreams. While not all work trips are conducive to family time, Lexi and I were both thrilled by WAI's invitation to attend such an inspiring event."

WAI Partners with Civil Air Patrol

Women in Aviation International has announced a new partnership with Civil Air Patrol to foster interest in aviation, share aerospace education resources, and provide opportunities for youth to experience flight.

A partnership agreement was signed Thursday at the U.S. Air Force booth by Allison McKay, WAI CEO, and Brig. Gen. Regena Aye, national vice commander for Civil Air Patrol. Joining the official signing event were 9 female cadets and Dr. Peggy Chabrian, CAP Foundation board member.

EXHIBITOR HIGHLIGHTS

Welcome First-Time Exhibitor UPS Flight Forward Inc.

UPS Flight Forward Inc. (Booth 710) is excited to participate in its first Women in Aviation International Conference during #WAI22. “We’re hoping to connect with women who want to join UPS to grow our drone airline,” explains Caesha Putt, HR Business Partner at the division. “We started two drone delivery operations at the height of the pandemic, both with women leaders on the project team. We’re looking to add more talent,” she continues.

FlightSafety International invests in National Intercollegiate Flying Association SAFECON National Championship

WAI Corporate member FlightSafety International (Booth 534) announced its commitment to the National Intercollegiate Flying Association (NIFA) for naming rights to the SAFECON National Championship. With this commitment, the event is now renamed SAFECON National Championship Powered by FlightSafety. NIFA is a forum in which collegiate aviators can expand their studies and further their careers. Students participate in competitive and non-competitive events, network with industry peers, and push beyond ordinary curriculum. More than 80 colleges and universities compete in regional and national NIFA competitions.

FlightSafety’s financial commitment will ensure NIFA’s continued mission, further advance the competition, and expand the event to aviation maintenance students.

Gleim Publications is in the House with Discounts for WAI members

You can get Gleim aviation training materials during #WAI22 at exclusive conference prices until March 22. (Go to Booth 414 for a special online link, or just grab what you need today while you are here at the show.)

Mentors Unite! Get Yours Here...

Do you know how you got here? For Lauren Beam, one of several jet pilots who participated in yesterday's Be A Mentor, Find A Mentor session (Sponsored by CAE) inspiration came from the Wings Over Houston Airshow at Ellington Field, where she saw women flying loops, rolls and spins. "Jessy Panzer and Debbie Rihn helped me realize that my dream of becoming a female pilot was attainable," she says. Lauren's degree in engineering helped her build essential skills that transferred well in her aviation career.

When she heard of the launch of Southwest Airlines Destination 225 Program, designed to train pilots from zero to flight deck, she jumped at the opportunity. Lauren trained at CAE Phoenix, and is now a first officer for XOJET Aviation flying the Challenger 300/350. She's also a CAE Women in Flight Ambassador and one of several WAI members here to mentor others this week at #WAI22. The CAE ambassador was bolstered at the session by two Boeing employees, Amber Kemmerling, an airplane systems engineer and Jeremy Rodgers, knowledge management systems strategy leader.

"Being a CAE Women in Flight Ambassador is an extraordinary opportunity for me to help inspire girls and young women to consider a career in aviation," she said.

If you missed the session don't despair! The handout can be downloaded from the WAI2022 App and there are many Friday and Saturday education sessions where mentoring plays a role. Attend one!

Pearls of Wisdom

WAI Daily staff had a moment to sit with Friday General Session speaker Niloofar Rahmani, first fixed-wing Afghani female Air Force pilot, who offered us a few quick pearls of wisdom.

WAI: Your story is so inspiring for WAI members who are encountering challenges getting support from friends and family in their efforts to become part of the aviation community. What do you want them to remember after hearing you speak at WAI?

Niloofar: I would like for them to remember that life is a journey of happiness and sadness. Not every day is happy and not every day is sad. When it is sad just be patient. You only fail if you quit.

WAI: Was there a single mentor in your life who really made the difference in your ability to succeed as a military pilot? Or were there a succession of mentors?

Niloofar: As an Afghan woman I had my father as a mentor and supporter. He always pushed me to do more and fight for my rights in a country where the dream of flying was initially impossible for me.

WAI: Women worldwide are slowly being exposed to the opportunities that exist for careers in aviation. What can American and European women do to help encourage the next generation worldwide?

Niloofar: We should provide more opportunities for those who are dreaming to fly but are unable financially to afford it. We need to provide more scholarships and opportunities that will encourage more young girls to go after their dreams that they might think are impossible.

WAI CORPORATE MEMBERS ON THE MOVE

IBAC Supports Women in Corporate Aviation with IS-BAO and IS-BAH Workshop Scholarships

The International Business Aviation Council (IBAC) announced the offering of two scholarships for its International Standard for Business Aircraft Operators (IS-BAO) and International Standard for Business Aircraft Handling (IS-BAH) workshops. Submissions for applications are being accepted at the Women in Corporate Aviation (WCA-intl.org) website until March 25, 2022. Stop by the WCA Booth 721 to find out more about this opportunity.

IBAC is a non-profit, international trade association with official observer status at the International Civil Aviation Organization, the UN Specialized Agency for Aviation Matters, in Montreal, Canada. IBAC Auditor Accreditation Manager, A&P technician, Yvonne Marinus is leading the scholarship process for IBAC. "Additional knowledge and insight of Safety Management Systems (SMS) and the independent auditing process can be valuable to people in our industry and is an excellent opportunity to enhance any aviation career," said Marinus.

The IBAC scholarships include one for IS-BAH Fundamentals and Auditing workshops, and one for IS-BAO Fundamentals and Auditing workshops. "All of us at IBAC look forward to hosting the WCA scholarship recipients," commented IBAC Director General, Kurt Edwards. "It is crucial to the future of our workforce that we encourage and support the talented women working in this industry."

Waltzing Matilda Aviation Hiring Flight Attendants

New WAI Corporate member flies charter, and soon, an airline

New WAI Corporate Member, Massachusetts-based Waltzing Matilda Aviation, is looking for flight attendants. The company, with both a business aviation and commercial airline branch, is looking for cabin/flight attendants and more for its Philadelphia base.

Want to know more? Check out: www.connectairlines.com/careers and <https://wmaviation.bamboohr.com/jobs/>

Don't forget to thank all WAI Corporate Members for their support when you see them in the Exhibit Hall. We rely on our Corporate Members for the excellent benefits, from mentoring to scholarships and training to job opportunities, legal advice, travel discounts and emergency evacuation available (with discounts) to WAI members worldwide.

Changing the Face of Aviation

Don't miss this spotlight panel session on Friday, from 1:45-2:45 p.m. in Bayou A, to learn more about the Women in Aviation Advisory Board and Youth in Aviation Task Force.

The FAA established the Women in Aviation Advisory Board to develop recommendations to create more opportunities for women to pursue a career in aviation as well as retain that talent. The Board will submit a report outlining a comprehensive plan to the FFA Administrator and appropriate committees of Congress.

In addition, the FAA established the Youth in Aviation Task Force to provide recommendations to encourage more young people to pursue career opportunities that exist in our industry. In a recent meeting the session included updates from each of the task force's four subcommittees where the key element of the group's engagement was in improving outreach to educators, guidance counselors and parents.

Moderated by Rene Banglesdorf (Charlie Bravo Aviation, LLC), the panel includes Dana Donati (LIFT Academy), Kelly Jost (C&S Engineers), Becky Lutte (University of Nebraska Omaha), Yvette Rose (Cargo Air), and Pam Williams (United Aviate).

Please join us to get an update on the work of both groups, and the recommendations to create a more diverse and inclusive workforce.

—Michelle Graves, WAI 45798

Wanna Be a Pilot AND a Mom?

Attend this session!

If you think you want to be an airline pilot and have a family you are going to want to hear what Kandy Bernskoetter, B767 captain at FedEx Express, Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) national membership committee chair, member of the FAA's Women in Aviation Advisory Board, and member of ALPA's Female Pilots Working Group has to say. Today at 1:45 p.m. in Governor's A she's moderating a panel on how four women found balance between being a mom and being a pilot. Come meet Sara Baer, a first officer from Alaska Airlines with a 2.5 year old and infant under 1 years old; Dominique Leonard-Curry, a regional airlines PSA pilot with three daughters; Kaori Paris a United Airlines A320 first officer with 2 teenagers who recently married an UPS pilot; and Catherine Rainey, a FedEx pilot with three pre-teen daughters who must balance sharing the girls with an ex-husband.

Bring your questions to this interactive session to explore the topic of balance, how it is possible to be a mom and a pilot, and how, together, we can remove barriers so that future generations are not faced with the same questions. If you happen to miss this session, it will be recorded and posted on ALPA's website clearedtodream.org.

A Big Shout Out to WAI Volunteers Just BE ONE!

Living the volunteer life during a WAI Conference can be addicting. Ask Ryan Martin, who started with volunteering at our WAI Long Beach conference and is happily back here in Nashville to help again (he's a CFI now). Kendall Hogue has been helping out WAI members throughout conferences going back to 2016, and volunteer photographers Mike Ullery and John Riedel? Well, longer than that.

Frankly, WAI2022 runs on the love and labor of a hundred or more volunteers, who come to the conference for the education and networking but stay for the heavy lifting and camaraderie. Come to the Volunteer Booth near Registration and see how you can help. And when you see someone wearing the scarlet badge of a volunteer here at the show, please, thank them.

Spare Change, Anyone?

We constantly make transactions through our smartphones. Paying for coffee, taxis and ride shares, buying groceries—you can put them all to good use with apps like RoundUp.

RoundUp will round out your daily transactions and donate the balance to the charity of your choice. (And of course, we know that WAI is your fave!) Even the most routine purchase can help, and you will be supporting Women in Aviation simply by doing your daily activities.

How does it work? For example, on a purchase of $12.13, the remaining 87 cents would be donated. Sure, it's a small amount, but it can add up quickly and what an easy way to support WAI! It all adds up to helping WAI make a difference in the lives of women and girls who are leaving their mark on aviation and aerospace. Take a minute and download one of the apps, then go shopping! Remember to select Women in Aviation International. Our EIN is 37-1279395.

Ready to pursue and achieve your dream of becoming an airline pilot?

CAE is committed like no other training organization to the advancement of women in aviation. Our CAE Women in Flight scholarship program offers full scholarships worldwide, covering the entire cost of a cadet's training.
