Each author must disclose any paid or unpaid positions that they hold (or any close relative or partner holds) as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations, or profit-making entities. A relevant organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

Identify each interested party from whom authors (or any close relative or partner) have received financial support of at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants, and the like (including in-kind support, such as providing access to data). If the support in question comes with a non-disclosure obligation, that fact should be stated, along with as much information as the obligation permits. An "interested" party is any individual, group, or organization that has a financial ideological, or political stake related to the article.

Each author must disclose whether their employer, funding organization or other party requires that they be allowed to review and approve of the content of the paper prior to circulation or submission. If any author is required to get approval to disseminate this work, please indicate the entity conducting the review and the reason the approval was necessary.

--

For any paper involving the collection of data on human subjects the author(s) must disclose whether they have obtained Institutional Review Board (IRB) approval; if no IRB approval was obtained, the reason should be stated.
