

Kim Marie Miller – BIO

Kim Marie Miller is currently the Senior Manager of Global Procurement at Elkay Plumbing Products in Downers Grove, Illinois, manufacturing both bottle-fillers and stainless still sinks in the U.S. with a global supplier footprint. Prior to her four years at Elkay, Kim spent 19 years at Fellowes, Inc, a privately held manufacturer of air purifiers, paper shredders, and bankers' boxes. She began her career at Fellowes as a Materials Manager, taking on additional responsibility across the Global Supply Chain and spent the last five years at Fellowes as the Director of Global Sourcing and Procurement. Kim travelled extensively to develop suppliers across the world.

Kim received her APICS certifications back in 1998 and has long been an advocate of hiring and educating women in the various Supply Chain specialties. She worked with women leadership across various industries, advocated by Loyola University Supply and Value Chain Center, to develop and foster a women's mentorship program – developing the program and personally mentoring individual women to successful Supply Chain careers.

For the past ten years, Kim has led and/or worked within various groups to advance Corporate Responsibility, including sustainability efforts across the Supply Chain at Fellowes and Elkay. Over the past year, Kim is working in tandem with the Director of Supplier Diversity to gather supplier data on diversity spend, education, and an expansion program with our suppliers.

Living in the Chicago suburb of Plainfield with her husband. Kim has two married children – a daughter who is a Labor and Delivery Nurse and a son who is an Aerospace Engineer. She is, also, quite happily a grandmother of five remarkable grandchildren.
